Gilligan Readies State Of State Message Tonight

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan delivers his fourth "State of the State" message to a joint session of the 110th General Assembly tonight with emphasis expected to be placed on energy problems.

He will ask special powers to implement federal emergency legislation, including a 55 mile per hour speed limit to keep Ohio from losing federal highway funds.

The governor also will propose a seven-member energy board to consist of four citizens picked by him and the directors of the Department of Economic and Community Development, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the chairman of the Public Utilities Commission.

Gilligan's speech will call for enactment of campaign finance reforms, election law reforms,

Rare Painting Put On Display

DETROIT (AP) — A long-lost major work by the 17th century Italian artist Michelangelo Merisi da Caravaggio has gone on public display at The Detroit Institute of Arts.

Dr. Frederick J. Cummings, the museum's director, says the painting, "The Conversion of the Magdalene," could prove to be the most important acquisition by an American museum in a decade.

The display will be the first continuous showing of the work in about 400 years, museum officials said.

The painting, only one of four Caravaggios in the United States, was purchased in 1971 for $1.1 million by the S.S. Kresge Foundation and Mrs. Edsel B. Ford, daughter-in-law of the founder of the Ford Motor Co. It was subsequently donated to the museum.

Cummings said it took the institute's staff 10 months to authenticate and restore the masterpiece.

"It is a very, very rare painting," Cummings said at unveiling ceremonies Monday.

He said Caravaggio is considered to have initiated the brief baroque era in painting, which he said brought "the message of the Christian drama ... down to the level of the man in the street."

In Caravaggio's style, the use of light was used to dramatize a story so the 17th century peasant could understand it easily. The technique helped establish Caravaggio as a major Western artist.

Done in 1598, the painting was rediscovered when the Alzagas, a wealthy Argentine family, put it on sale in London in 1971. The Alzagas had owned the Caravaggio for three generations.

passage of a no-fault auto insurance bill, and state ratification of the women's Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, among other things, aides reported.

The Senate and House both had floor sessions scheduled in advance of the governor's 7 p.m. address. Bills up for House action included a proposal to restore Nov. 11 as the date for Ohio observance of Veterans Day, and to eliminate a $3,000 ceiling on exemptions a family can claim under the state income tax. The Senate was to vote on a bill requiring notice to property owners before junk autos could be ordered removed or covered up.

House Republican leaders Monday offered a campaign finance reform bill that would move Ohio in the direction of having political campaigns underwritten by the public.

Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, F-33 Perrysburg, and Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, the House GOP whip, called for legislation that would allow Ohioans to deduct political contributions of $5 or $10 from their state income tax. Contributions would go directly to candidates or parties.

Kurfess said the legislation, which also limits contributions and campaign spending, is intended to bring an end to the influence of "special interest groups" and to encourage citizen participation in government. Organizations would be banned from giving, under the proposal.

A contribution of $5 could be deducted from a single tax return, while $10 could be claimed on a joint return. The maximum individual contribution would be $3,000, and no person could contribute more than $25,000 to combinations of candidates and parties during a campaign.

Kurfess said if all eligible voters participated, about $20 million a year would be raised on behalf of Ohio's parties and candidates.

Gilligan was not available for comment on the proposal, but his press secretary, Robert Tenenbaum, said he doubted if the governor would favor a tax credit of $10. "The average person only pays about $48 a year in income taxes," he said.

Rep. Donald Pease, D-54 Oberlin, introduced a bill last week that would allow $5 and $10 tax credits for political contributions, but would not include restrictions such as those in the GOP bill.

Pease said that while he believes the tax credit system may take some getting used to, he believes Ohioans eventually would accept the idea. Then, the Oberlin lawmaker said, the legislature could take a look at putting restrictions on other types of campaign funding.

Fuel Curbs Take Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government began applying today a program of gasoline austerity and fuel oil rationing, including less home heating for the nation.

The new regulations, which took effect one minute before midnight Monday, permit exceptions for hardship cases.

Normally, however, thermostats in homes and other residential buildings must be set six degrees lower than in the same month of 1972, and in other buildings ten degrees lower. Many people have already done this and the regulations will not require a further reduction on their part.

Service stations will get less gasoline than before. Just how much less was uncertain, but an FEO official guessed it might be 15 to 20 per cent less than the public otherwise would use in 1974.

The administration has asked motorists to limit themselves voluntarily to ten gallons of gasoline per week, but so far there is no formal limit to their individual gasoline use.

Airlines will get five per cent less aviation fuel than in 1972 and they have already started reducing flight schedules.

Electric power plants are to get as much residual fuel oil as the FEO says they can have, depending how much there is.

But essential services and military activities will get just about all the petroleum they need, holding top priorities in the new nationwide petroleum allocation system.

In allowing for "hardship" exceptions to their specific limits, the regulations provide plenty of room for deciding what a hardship is — apparently it could include an exceptionally cold house or a business that's hurting from too little fuel.

"Hardship", the regulations say, "means a situation involving or potentially involving substantial discomfort or danger and/or economic dislocation."

In effect, the system rations major petroleum products right down to the final consumer, with one major exception: gasoline.

The Nixon administration has ordered creation of a standby gasoline-rationing system but has not yet decided whether to use it.

As when they were first proposed the final regulations, which took effect just before midnight, were accompanied by a flip-flop of FEO interpretation.

Late Monday, FEO spokesmen said — mistakenly, as it developed — that service stations would be allocated as much gasoline as in 1972.

Still later, however, the agency reversed itself and assistant director John Hill said service stations would get whatever was left after higher-priority bulk purchasers were supplied, just as proposed earlier.

Hill said the flip-flop in explanations made little real difference since most gasoline goes to service stations anyway and the priority demands "off the top" would make little impact.

More significant was the regulation to tip refinery outputs a little away from gasoline and toward other products.

The final regulations included no specific figure for a reduction in refinery gasoline yields; that number is to be established periodically by the FEO.

Hill said the cutback considered earlier — to 95 per cent of 1972 levels — was being reviewed and might be eased if fuel oil stocks continued to hold up through a winter which, so far, has been unusually mild.

As a rough estimate, Hill said, the available gasoline may be 15 to 20 per cent below potential 1974 demand.

The new regulations permit state allocation agencies to set aside portions of certain petroleum products for distribution to hardship cases.

Defense Department allocations of all petroleum products, except for heating buildings, "shall be based on current requirements," subject to review and approval by the President.

While his Federal Energy Office was preparing the regulations to govern the nation's petroleum distribution system, FEO director William E. Simon found consumer advocate Ralph Nader claiming none of this was really necessary.

Nader, testifying before a House-Senate joint economic subcommittee Monday, said "The world is literally drowning in oil. Any government agency can create a shortage simply by announcing it."

But Simon told Congress the energy crisis is real and "we do indeed have a serious shortage."

In other energy developments: —The Exxon Co. said Monday that its total petroleum inventories as of Jan. 4 were larger than a year earlier, with gasoline stocks about the same, and crude oil and fuel oils higher.

—Consolidated Edison Co., the power company serving New York City, cut back voltage another two per cent, reaching a five per cent voltage reduction, or "brownout." The company said it was down to a 10-day supply of fuel oil, less than half of normal.

—In Beirut, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia's King Faisal told U.S. Sen. J. Bennett Johnston Jr., D-La., that Saudi Arabia would be willing to end its oil embargo against the United States if Washington would declare publicly that Israel should withdraw from all occupied Arab lands. This might be a softening of the Saudi position, which previously said the embargo would continue until Israel agreed to withdraw from Arab lands and actually began leaving.

—In London, U.S. Vice President Gerald R. Ford repeated the U.S. diplomatic theme urging international cooperation on energy problems, rather than a competitive scramble for oil.

Tunisia-Libya Merger In Trouble

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — The merger between Libya and Tunisia appears to be in deep trouble just three days after it was announced amid resounding tributes to Arab unity from the participants and general skepticism from everyone else.

President Habib Bourguiba hurriedly called Tunisia's Council of the Republic to a meeting today that may decide the fate of the agreement Bourguiba signed Saturday with Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafy.

The council includes all members of the cabinet and the executive of Bourguiba's Neo-Destour party, Tunisia's only legal political party. It meets at irregular intervals to deal with major policy matters.

Bourguiba fired the chief Tunisian architect of the agreement, Foreign Minister Mohamed Masmoudi, on Monday. The government radio and television stations, which had hailed the agreement as a major milestone for the Arab world, dropped almost all mention of it after reporting Masmoudi's dismissal.

The two Tunis newspapers gave the merger scant attention.

Candidates Reminded Of Filing Date

Deadline for filing for the May Primary election is Feb. 6. Pickaway County election board officials today reminded candidates for public office and central committee.

To date, only two petitions have been filed, both for central committee.

Candidates who have taken petitions out for county commissioner are Gillis Conley, Democrat, and Wayne Hines, Republican incumbent.

Candidates who have taken out petitions for auditor are Ned Dresbach, Republican; Margaret Remy, Democrat and Marvene Rhoades, Democrat, who has since announced her intention of retiring from public office at the end of her current term.

Floyd McKenzie, Ashville, has taken out a petition for state representative. None of these candidates have filed as of today.

Offices to be filled at this election are: one county commissioner, county auditor, state representative, state senator, state representative and one judge for fourth district court of appeals.

Urge Work Day At Orient State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. and Mrs. John Gilligan, other state officials, and news persons have been invited to work an abbreviated day at Orient State Institute.

The Ohio Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, issued the invitation to show those involved recent changes under the department's "humanization" program. The program began at state hospitals and institutions about two years ago.

Orient State is the largest of the state's six institutions for the mentally retarded.

Diplomatic sources reported that Premier Hedi Nour, who had long opposed Masmoudi's maneuvering for a linkup with Libya and its oil riches, was the main cause of the foreign minister's downfall.

Masmoudi admitted in an interview that he and Nour were "at opposite ends of the pole" on the merger. But he also said Bourguiba told him he was being removed because the United States government objected to such policies of his as recognition of Communist China, North Vietnam and Prince Norodom Sihanouk's Cambodian government-in-exile.

U.S. Ambassador Talcott W. Seelye said it was "ridiculous to suggest Masmoudi had become persona non grata in Washington." He added: "Masmoudi is perfectly well aware that there is no truth in any such allegation."

Masmoudi declined to speculate whether the merger agreement was dead, but he spoke of it as something that might have been.

"It could have been a great enrich-

Mideast Pullback Plans Studied

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today outlined Egypt's counterproposals for a withdrawal of military forces on the Suez front and said Israeli leaders appeared to find "constructive aspects" in the plan.

Kissinger emerged from a two-hour meeting with Deputy Premier Yigal Allon, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and said they had "a very warm and I think very useful discussion."

"We learned in very great detail what the Egyptian ideas are," said Eban. He added that the talk had been "very useful, detailed and substantive."

The foreign minister went from the meeting to Premier Golda Meir's home to tell her about it. Mrs. Meir is confined to her home with an attack of shingles.

ROUNDTOWN

THE new mayor of the village of Orient lasted just about 45 minutes in public office . . . Walter Johnston submitted his resignation at the first official meeting of council . . . He had been a write-in candidate for mayor . . .

UPON his resignation, the village council named James Sealock to the post . . . Long active in village politics, Sealock is a former mayor and councilman.

The chief point under discussion is what Egypt is willing to do in the way of thinning its forces and arms on the east bank of the Suez Canal in exchange for withdrawal of Israeli troops from the canal.

Kissinger brought the Egyptian counterproposals Monday night from Aswan, where he conferred once more with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The American said he believed they had "narrowed the differences substantially" and he hoped to narrow them further during his talks with the Israelis.

Egypt apparently had no objections to Israel's offer to pull its troops back to a line about 20 miles east of the canal. But Kissinger returned to Israel with a map showing the positions the Egyptians insist on holding on the east bank as well as the buffer zone the Egyptians are willing to let the United Nations peacekeeping force man between the two armies.

One high-ranking American official with Kissinger said he thought the differences between the Israeli proposal and the Egyptian counterproposal were manageable. The principal disagreement apparently was over the number and kinds of anti-aircraft missiles and other weapons that Egypt would retain on the east side of the canal.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said shortly before Kissinger's return that the Soviet Union has rebuilt most of the missile sites in Egypt and Syria that were destroyed in the October war and has introduced new and longer-range missiles into the armories of both nations.

The Israeli government's chief opposition, the right-wing Likud bloc, claimed that the Egyptians also had built missile sites in the areas east of the canal that they occupied in the war.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban met Kissinger on his return from Aswan Monday night and conferred with him until after midnight. The American secretary's schedule this morning called for a meeting first with Premier Golda Meir, who is confined to her home with an attack of shingles.

Kissinger hoped to be able to hold a final meeting Wednesday with Sadat and then let the two countries return to direct negotiations in Geneva.

Kissinger said he hoped to return to Washington by the weekend. He is expected to travel via Jordan. Meanwhile, Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy is to fly to Moscow to discuss the disengagement situation with the Russians.

ment for both our countries," he said. "It was necessary to create a nucleus of Arab unity, and I sincerely believe we could have done this with Libya."

But major differences between Bourguiba and Khadafy promise a rough time for any attempt to unite their two governments.

The 31-year-old Libyan is a fiery Moslem nationalist who urges a holy war to exterminate Israel and the expulsion of Western influence from the Arab world. Bourguiba at 70 is a friend of the West, readily accepts Western aid and influence in his country and believes Israel should be recognized if it withdraws from captured Arab lands.

Commentators in other Arab countries concluded that Khadafy, who has inherited Gamal Abdel Nasser's burning ambition to unite the Arab world, turned to Tunisia out of frustration because of the failure of his attempt last year to merge with Egypt. And Bourguiba presumably found the idea attractive because it offered his poverty-stricken country a chance to share Libya's vast oil wealth.

Successor To Ford Voted On

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Amid predictions of a light turnout, 5th Congressional District voters choose a Republican nominee for Vice President Gerald R. Ford's old seat in Congress.

Today's GOP primary is the district's first in 25 years, and four candidates are scrambling for the nomination. Ford had no opposition for his party's nomination after ousting an incumbent congressman in the 1948 primary.

Kent County election officials in Grand Rapids predicted only 17 per cent of the county's 224,965 registered voters would go to the polls today. Eighty per cent of the 5th District's registered voters live in Kent County. There were no predictions from the rest of the district, which takes in several rural townships east of Grand Rapids.

Ford, named vice president after Spiro T. Agnew resigned and pleaded no contest to an income tax evasion charge, has remained neutral during the primary. However, party officials are predicting he will return to the district to campaign for the nominee picked today.

"This is still Jerry Ford's district to most people; there really seems to be more interest in his visit Thursday than in the election," one party worker observed.

Many observers cast Robert VanderLaan, 43, majority leader in the Michigan Senate, as the favorite. But former Grand Rapids Mayor Robert Boelens, 48, claimed on Monday that a GOP poll showed him ahead.

Weather

Mostly cloudy and mild today through Wednesday. High today, upper 40s. Low tonight, upper 30s. High Wednesday, low 50s. Probability of precipitation, 20 per cent today, tonight and tomorrow. Temperatures Monday were: high, 40; low, 39.

Rare Painting Put On Display

DETROIT (AP) — A long-lost major work by the 17th century Italian artist Michelangelo Merisi da Caravaggio has gone on public display at The Detroit Institute of Arts.

Dr. Frederick J. Cummings, the museum's director, says the painting, "The Conversion of the Magdalene," could prove to be the most important acquisition by an American museum in a decade.

The display will be the first continuous showing of the work in about 400 years, museum officials said.

The painting, only one of four Caravaggios in the United States, was purchased in 1971 for $1.1 million by the S.S. Kresge Foundation and Mrs. Edsel B. Ford, daughter-in-law of the founder of the Ford Motor Co. It was subsequently donated to the museum.

Cummings said it took the institute's staff 10 months to authenticate and restore the masterpiece.

"It is a very, very rare painting," Cummings said at unveiling ceremonies Monday.

He said Caravaggio is considered to have initiated the brief baroque era in painting, which he said brought "the message of the Christian drama ... down to the level of the man in the street."

In Caravaggio's style, the use of light was used to dramatize a story so the 17th century peasant could understand it easily. The technique helped establish Caravaggio as a major Western artist.

Done in 1598, the painting was rediscovered when the Alzagas, a wealthy Argentine family, put it on sale in London in 1971. The Alzagas had owned the Caravaggio for three generations.

Missile Tests Over Land Still Pushed

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — The Air Force hopes to convince residents of the Pacific Northwest that the sky, or anything the military puts in it, won't fall as a result of a missile testing program.

At stake in the public relations campaign is $26.9 million the Air Force wants from Congress to test-fire four unarmed Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missiles from Montana bases next winter.

The test would see four of the weapons flash across the skies of Montana, Idaho and Oregon.

Congressmen and other officials in the three states have expressed fear that chunks of the weapons could fall on the heads of their constituents.

At a briefing Monday, the Air Force presented charts and data designed to ease any worries about Chicken Little happenings.

Maj. Gen. John W. Pauly, who heads the project, said probability of public injury is virtually nonexistent.

Data indicates the Air Force could launch 5,000 Minuteman missiles at the cost of one human injury, and he said that injury would not necessarily be fatal.

He also said previous tests have proved the missile to be reliable.

Plans for the tests were announced last month in Washington, D.C. A Pentagon spokesman said successful launchings by combat missile crews could influence Soviet attitudes on nuclear arms limitations.

In Monday's briefing at Malmstrom Air Force Base, a spokesman said officers would not discuss political implications of the program.

Malmstrom, near Great Falls, is the hub of a complex of 200 Minuteman II missiles buried in silos throughout central Montana.

County Receives Welfare Subsidy

Pickaway County will receive $17,200 from a total of $8,025,772.86 distributed to counties for welfare assistance, according to State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

The amount of $5,228,900 will help the counties cover the general relief and administration costs of their welfare operations. The general relief subsidy is derived from state revenue.

The remaining sum of $2,796,872.86 went to 55 counties for their administration and purchase of family and children services. This revenue comes from both federal and state funds. Aid for dependent children is the primary family and children service.

Under the Supplemental Security Income program, begun Jan. 1, 1974, the federal government has assumed the counties' responsibility of administering adult public assistance programs such as aid for the aged, disabled and blind.

Martin Luther King Date Recalled

By EARLEEN F. TATRO Associated Press Writer

In Chicago, the Rev. Jesse Jackson prepared a protest against the Standard Oil Co. because he believed it was the sort of thing Martin Luther King Jr. would have done.

In Atlanta, civic leaders launched a fund-raising drive for the proposed $10-million Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social Change.

In many schools pupils were excused from classes; in some cities and states it was a holiday.

And so it was across the nation today, as people remembered the 45th anniversary of King's birth.

In Tennessee, where the civil rights leader was slain by an assassin's bullet on April 4, 1968, the House of Representatives was unable to muster enough votes to pass a resolution calling on Congress to make his birthday a national holiday.

The vote in the 99-member house was 34 to 17 in favor of the resolution, 16 votes short of the required 50-vote majority. Opponents said the resolution was unfair because many noteworthy figures in Tennessee history have not had their birthdays declared national holidays.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson, president of Operation PUSH, said the hour-long vigil outside the Standard Oil building in downtown Chicago was to "express our displeasure with the recent increase in gasoline prices and the loss of jobs ... resulting from the energy hoax."

The Rev. Mr. Jackson, who was with King in Memphis when he was killed, said: "Knowing Dr. King as we did, he would not celebrate his birthday in idle activity apart from focusing on the problems that confront the nation ..."

One of the many memorial services in Chicago today was sponsored by PUSH — People United to Save Humanity.

In Atlanta, about 100 business leaders, Mayor Maynard Jackson and Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., attended a luncheon Monday to kick off the fund-raising drive for the Center for Social Change.

King's widow, Coretta Scott King, said the center is intended to preserve and continue King's work in nonviolent social progress.

The Southern Christian Leadership Council, which King headed, said its 350 chapters and 1,000 affiliate organizations were conducting commemorative activities.

In New York City, public schools were closed today and city employees had the option of working or staying home and charging the day to their annual leave.

In Maine, Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis declared Martin Luther King Day.

In Illinois, it was a commemorative state holiday. Public and private institutions were allowed to close if they wished. Elementary and secondary schools in Chicago were closed, but many downstate districts elected to remain open and teachers were encouraged to spend some time teaching about King.

Schools in Baltimore and Philadelphia were closed Monday, making a three-day weekend.

Boston University Hospital remembered King's birthday by allowing a majority of its 1,600 employees to take the day off, and operated with a holiday skeleton crew. King graduated from Boston University's school of theology in 1955.

County Receives Welfare Subsidy

Pickaway County will receive $17,200 from a total of $8,025,772.86 distributed to counties for welfare assistance, according to State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

The amount of $5,228,900 will help the counties cover the general relief and administration costs of their welfare operations. The general relief subsidy is derived from state revenue.

The remaining sum of $2,796,872.86 went to 55 counties for their administration and purchase of family and children services. This revenue comes from both federal and state funds. Aid for dependent children is the primary family and children service.

Under the Supplemental Security Income program, begun Jan. 1, 1974, the federal government has assumed the counties' responsibility of administering adult public assistance programs such as aid for the aged, disabled and blind.

Martin Luther King Date Recalled

By EARLEEN F. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

In Chicago, the Rev. Jesse Jackson prepared a protest against the Standard Oil Co. because he believed it was the sort of thing Martin Luther King Jr. would have done.

In Atlanta, civic leaders launched a fund-raising drive for the proposed $10-million Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social Change.

In many schools pupils were excused from classes; in some cities and states it was a holiday.

And so it was across the nation today, as people remembered the 45th anniversary of King's birth.

In Tennessee, where the civil rights leader was slain by an assassin's bullet on April 4, 1968, the House of Representatives was unable to muster enough votes to pass a resolution calling on Congress to make his birthday a national holiday.

The vote in the 99-member house was 34 to 17 in favor of the resolution, 16 votes short of the required 50-vote majority. Opponents said the resolution was unfair because many noteworthy figures in Tennessee history have not had their birthdays declared national holidays.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson, president of Operation PUSH, said the hour-long vigil outside the Standard Oil building in downtown Chicago was to "express our displeasure with the recent increase in gasoline prices and the loss of jobs ... resulting from the energy hoax."

The Rev. Mr. Jackson, who was with King in Memphis when he was killed, said: "Knowing Dr. King as we did, he would not celebrate his birthday in idle activity apart from focusing on the problems that confront the nation ..."

One of the many memorial services in Chicago today was sponsored by PUSH — People United to Save Humanity.

In Atlanta, about 100 business leaders, Mayor Maynard Jackson and Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., attended a luncheon Monday to kick off the fund-raising drive for the Center for Social Change.

King's widow, Coretta Scott King, said the center is intended to preserve and continue King's work in nonviolent social progress.

The Southern Christian Leadership Council, which King headed, said its 350 chapters and 1,000 affiliate organizations were conducting commemorative activities.

In New York City, public schools were closed today and city employees had the option of working or staying home and charging the day to their annual leave.

In Maine, Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis declared Martin Luther King Day.

In Illinois, it was a commemorative state holiday. Public and private institutions were allowed to close if they wished. Elementary and secondary schools in Chicago were closed, but many downstate districts elected to remain open and teachers were encouraged to spend some time teaching about King.

Schools in Baltimore and Philadelphia were closed Monday, making a three-day weekend.

Boston University Hospital remembered King's birthday by allowing a majority of its 1,600 employees to take the day off, and operated with a holiday skeleton crew. King graduated from Boston University's school of theology in 1955.

Legislative Report

By MYRL SHOEMAKER,
State Representative
88th House District

The House has created a special committee to consider bills dealing with the energy crisis.

The new nine-member committee will provide the House with an indepth report on each bill before it is referred to the appropriate standing committee.

The House Select Committee on Energy will deal with solutions to the immediate problems and will look at long range solutions as well.

In the weeks ahead, this committee will be considering some of the most important legislation of the session.

Legislation allowing separation for two years as a grounds for divorce has been approved by the House of Representatives. The bill provides a nonadversary, or "no fault", approach to divorce.

A dissolution of a marriage by the court if both spouses agree on all separation terms is permitted under this measure. A petition for dissolution must be signed by both spouses and must include a separation agreement, a division of property, custody provisions, alimony, and child support provisions. Both spouses must appear in court and swear that they agree completely on the terms, or the petition must be dismissed.

The legislation would allow the court to order the parties in any action for divorce, annulment, or alimony to undergo conciliation procedures for ninety days at their own expense. The court may also order a change in custody of children when it is in the children's best interest.

When the people seeking a marriage license are both under 18 years of age, the judge must require that they receive satisfactory marriage counseling.

The measure now goes to the Senate for its consideration.

The House passed legislation allowing a more flexible school schedule to accommodate parent-teacher conferences.

Present law requires schools to be in session a minimum of 5 hours a day. Some schools which are usually in session for more than 5 hours per day are prohibited from shortening a particular school day to hold a parent-teacher conference.

This bill would enable a school district to devote more time during the regular school day to parent-teacher conferences by expressing in hours, rather than days and hours, the minimum amount of instruction a school is required to offer each year. Under the provisions of the new legislation, a district that chooses to go on such a flexible scheduling play, and that received the State Department of

Truckers
Haggle Over
Shutdown

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Truckers continue to haggle over the date of a planned coast-to-coast shutdown, as one group announced intentions to go ahead with its Jan. 24 protest date.

"I'm optimistic something will be worked out," said a spokesman for the southern Ohio group. "If it isn't, we will close the trucks down."

He said his group would be instructed "not to bother" any truckers who might be abiding by the Jan. 31 shutdown date.

The National Committee of the Independent Owner Operators voted recently in Akron to observe a Jan. 24 shutdown, but the Teamsters and the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers (FASH) decided to protest a week later.

The spokesman said the difficulty arises "by the men not getting together. They made their statements and had to stick to it."

Representatives of the independent truckers met with Washington officials over the weekend to work up a proposal which goes before Congress Jan. 21.

The truckers claim they have been hard hit by rising fuel prices.

The southern Ohio group was among the last groups to end their protests and closings of major truck stops last month.

Saxbe Sees Need For Better Police

MECHANICSBURG, Ohio (AP) — The nation's new chief legal executive says local police departments now are often ineffective and must undergo "basic and necessary changes."

U.S. Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said assuring speedier apprehension and prosecution at the local level is more important for crime prevention than any new legislation making criminal laws tougher.

In an interview before he took office Jan. 4, the former Ohio senator said he faced "really big decisions" on how to revamp police departments.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which funnels much of the U.S. Justice Department's budget to local police, isn't doing the job, he said.

"The money keeps piling in, and we aren't getting the results because too much of it goes for hardware and not enough of it goes for real basic and necessary changes in the setup," Saxbe said at his Mechanicsburg home.

"We still run little fiefdoms in all our police departments, even though we've got 1,100 to 1,200 of them here in this state, and they all operate differently," Saxbe said.

The attorney general said local police departments must be improved to the point that the criminal expects to be captured.

"I've always operated on the idea that the certainty of apprehension is much more important than the severity of any penalty," he said.

"If the guy thinks he's going to get caught, even if the sentence is minor, he's not going to do it."

"But if they think they can get away with it, they work on the odds," Saxbe said. "And today they have a pretty good chance of getting away with it."

"Or even if they do get caught, they won't be brought to trial and prosecuted."

"If they think they're going to get caught and tried, it's a real deterrent," he said.

Saxbe also said that organized crime can be attacked through what he sees as its foundation — gambling. And the

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

(Q.) I had a lot of dental work done recently, and I asked my dentist to bill me after the first of the year. Can I still deduct these medical expenses on my 1973 return?

(A.) No. Medical expenses may be deducted only in the year you pay them. Thus, if you want to claim a deduction for these dental expenses on your 1973 return, you will have to pay them before the end of 1973.

(Q.) My employer gives all his employees a ham for Christmas. This is a tax-free gift, isn't it?

(A.) Yes. If to promote good will, your employer makes a general distribution of hams, turkeys, or other items of merchandise of nominal value at Christmas time, the value of these gifts is not income and therefore, not taxable.

However, if your employer distributes cash, gift certificates, or similar items of readily convertible cash value, the value of such gifts is additional salary or wages.

(Q.) A prospective employer paid my travel expenses to come in for a job interview. Is payment of these expenses taxable income to me?

(A.) The amount you receive is income only to the extent that it exceeds your actual expenses.

(Q.) What are some of the typical records that a taxpayer might use in operating a small business?

(A.) A typical recordkeeping system for a small business might include: a daily summary of cash receipts, a monthly income journal, a check disbursements journal, a business checkbook, a depreciation record, and an employee compensation record. For more details, see IRS Publication 583, "Recordkeeping for A Small Business." It's available free from your nearest IRS office.

FASH To Join
Truck Shutdown
At Month's End

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The head of the nation's largest group of independent truck drivers has announced the membership will join a national trucking shutdown set for Jan. 31.

William Hill, president of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers (FASH), said the truckers voted unanimously to shutdown for an indefinite period to dramatize the fuel shortage and the gap between their wages and higher fuel costs.

"The steel haulers need an immediate 20 per cent hike in tariff rates to meet the increased costs of operations," Hill said. A proposed six per cent increase scheduled to go into effect Saturday is not enough," Hill added.

Legislative Report

By MYRL SHOEMAKER,
State Representative
88th House District

The House has created a special committee to consider bills dealing with the energy crisis.

The new nine-member committee will provide the House with an indepth report on each bill before it is referred to the appropriate standing committee.

The House Select Committee on Energy will deal with solutions to the immediate problems and will look at long range solutions as well.

In the weeks ahead, this committee will be considering some of the most important legislation of the session.

Legislation allowing separation for two years as a grounds for divorce has been approved by the House of Representatives. The bill provides a nonadversary, or "no fault", approach to divorce.

A dissolution of a marriage by the court if both spouses agree on all separation terms is permitted under this measure. A petition for dissolution must be signed by both spouses and must include a separation agreement, a division of property, custody provisions, alimony, and child support provisions. Both spouses must appear in court and swear that they agree completely on the terms, or the petition must be dismissed.

The legislation would allow the court to order the parties in any action for divorce, annulment, or alimony to undergo conciliation procedures for ninety days at their own expense. The court may also order a change in custody of children when it is in the children's best interest.

When the people seeking a marriage license are both under 18 years of age, the judge must require that they receive satisfactory marriage counseling.

The measure now goes to the Senate for its consideration.

The House passed legislation allowing a more flexible school schedule to accommodate parent-teacher conferences.

Present law requires schools to be in session a minimum of 5 hours a day. Some schools which are usually in session for more than 5 hours per day are prohibited from shortening a particular school day to hold a parent-teacher conference.

This bill would enable a school district to devote more time during the regular school day to parent-teacher conferences by expressing in hours, rather than days and hours, the minimum amount of instruction a school is required to offer each year. Under the provisions of the new legislation, a district that chooses to go on such a flexible scheduling plan, and that received the State Department of Education's approval to do so, would not have to be in session for a minimum length of time any particular school day.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Legislation eliminating driver confusion over when to stop for school buses was adopted by the House this week. The aim is to reduce the possibility of accidents to school children.

Current law requires cars to stop for buses only outside of municipal corporation limits. This new measure would require motorists to stop 10 feet from buses loading or unloading children anywhere in the state.

Drivers still would not have to stop for buses stopped on the other side of divided highways, since bus drivers are required to discharge children who live along such highways on the side on which they live.

Legislation requiring pre-sentence reports on every defendant who is convicted of a felony was approved by the Ohio House of Representatives.

Such reports would contain information relating to the circumstances of the crime, the defendant's history, possible rehabilitative resources available to the defendant, and physical and mental examinations of the defendant.

Many courts in the state are presently using presentence reports, but this legislation would require them state-wide. Such reports are aimed at better rehabilitation of offenders by carefully matching them with the programs and facilities that are available.

All presentence reports would be confidential, available only to the sentencing or an appellate court, to the prosecuting and defense attorneys, and to the department or institution to which the defendant is committed.

The sentencing court is authorized by the bill to confine the defendant for up to 60 additional days so that information may be gathered and the defendant examined. Such confinement time will be credited against any sentence which is later imposed upon the defendant.

The legislation allows counties to enter into contracts with the State Department of Rehabilitations and Corrections to provide investigations and presentence reports.

This week the Ohio House of Representatives approved legislation that will put teeth into the law licensing businesses that sell alcoholic beverages.

Sometimes people with criminal records or circumstances that legally bar them from receiving a liquor permit will form a corporation to disguise their identity. The legislation approved this week will prevent this from happening.

This bill would require that any person having beneficial ownership of a business be clearly identified on the liquor permit application. If the owner is a corporation, officers and each person controlling more than five percent of the company would have to be listed.

The bill would also require any change in ownership to be reported to the Department of Liquor Control within 15 days.

If approved violations would result in a fine of up to $1000 or imprisonment for 6 months or both for individuals, and a fine of up to $5000 for corporations.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Saxbe Sees Need For Better Police

MECHANICSBURG, Ohio (AP) — The nation's new chief legal executive says local police departments now are often ineffective and must undergo "basic and necessary changes."

U.S. Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said assuring speedier apprehension and prosecution at the local level is more important for crime prevention than any new legislation making criminal laws tougher.

"If they think they're going to get caught and tried, it's a real deterrent," he said.

Saxbe also said that organized crime can be attacked through what he sees as its foundation — gambling. And the citizen who keeps the organized crime going is the rich businessman betting $300 to $500 a week on football games, he said.

"It's not the $2 horse player who supports them," Saxbe said. "It's this guy that bets that kind of money. And they support and foster all the other underworld activities."

"When you get into the syndicate, you're also into the 'juice' rackets, such as loan sharking, and you're also into drugs and prostitution."

"But the anchor is gambling," Saxbe said. "And it's hard to convince this businessman and this banker or whatever he may be that he's supporting the syndicate by these bets."

"I just don't think they realize what they're involved in," he said.

(Q.) I had a lot of dental work done recently, and I asked my dentist to bill me after the first of the year. Can I still deduct these medical expenses on my 1973 return?

(A.) No. Medical expenses may be deducted only in the year you pay them. Thus, if you want to claim a deduction for these dental expenses on your 1973 return, you will have to pay them before the end of 1973.

(Q.) My employer gives all his employees a ham for Christmas. This is a tax-free gift, isn't it?

(A.) Yes. If to promote good will, your employer makes a general distribution of hams, turkeys, or other items of merchandise of nominal value at Christmas time, the value of these gifts is not income and therefore, not taxable.

However, if your employer distributes cash, gift certificates, or similar items of readily convertible cash value, the value of such gifts is additional salary or wages.

(Q.) A prospective employer paid my travel expenses to come in for a job interview. Is payment of these expenses taxable income to me?

(A.) The amount you receive is income only to the extent that it exceeds your actual expenses.

(Q.) What are some of the typical records that a taxpayer might use in operating a small business?

(A.) A typical recordkeeping system for a small business might include: a daily summary of cash receipts, a monthly income journal, a check disbursements journal, a business checkbook, a depreciation record, and an employee compensation record. For more details, see IRS Publication 583, "Recordkeeping for A Small Business." It's available free from your nearest IRS office.

FASH To Join Truck Shutdown At Month's End

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The head of the nation's largest group of independent truck drivers has announced the membership will join a national trucking shutdown set for Jan. 31.

William Hill, president of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers (FASH), said the truckers voted unanimously to shutdown for an indefinite period to dramatize the fuel shortage and the gap between their wages and higher fuel costs.

"The steel haulers need an immediate 20 per cent hike in tariff rates to meet the increased costs of operations," Hill said. A proposed six per cent increase scheduled to go into effect Saturday is not enough," Hill added.

Truckers Haggle Over Shutdown

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Truckers continue to haggle over the date of a planned coast-to-coast shutdown, as one group announced intentions to go ahead with its Jan. 24 protest date.

"I'm optimistic something will be worked out," said a spokesman for the southern Ohio group. "If it isn't, we will close the trucks down."

He said his group would be instructed "not to bother" any truckers who might be abiding by the Jan. 31 shutdown date.

The National Committee of the Independent Owner Operators voted recently in Akron to observe a Jan. 24 shutdown, but the Teamsters and the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers (FASH) decided to protest a week later.

The spokesman said the difficulty arises "by the men not getting together. They made their statements and had to stick to it."

Representatives of the independent truckers met with Washington officials over the weekend to work up a proposal which goes before Congress Jan. 21.

The truckers claim they have been hard hit by rising fuel prices.

The southern Ohio group was among the last groups to end their protests and closings of major truck stops last month.

Stretching Oil Use

Iran is not a member of the Arab oil boycotting countries. It has continued to supply oil to its former customers, including the United States. But its philosophy of oil pricing is similar to that of the Persian Gulf countries—the higher the better.

In an interview given Austrian reporters, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi explained why. Iran does not consider oil a political weapon, the Shah said, but it does see it as an exhaustible resource which needs to be preserved. Consequently, Iran has adopted higher oil prices for two purposes:

To establish a "better relationship" between crude oil prices and costs of industrial commodities Iran has to purchase from the West, and to convince the world that oil is

"far too precious to burn as heating fuel or in engines."

Coal and water energy sources ought to be used to the maximum extent possible, the Shah contends, and new sources—meaning nuclear and solar—developed for the future. Limiting oil consumption to the petrochemical industry may be an excellent theory, but in the meantime what keeps the wheels turning and furnaces fired?

Messrs. Bill Buckley and J. Kenneth Galbraith—the best Yale-vs.-Harvard game in town—gave their predictions about the principals they'd like to see, and expect to see, battling for the Presidency in 1976.

"Ted Kennedy, of course," Galbraith said in the course of an intellectually stimulating duel with Buckley on NBC's "Today" show.

"Ronald Reagan," Buckley countered.

New Agricultural Bargaining Framework Pushed By Official

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal farm official says a new framework for agricultural bargaining is needed to help producers move further into a market-oriented economy.

But Asst. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said the federal government should maintain a low profile.

Yeutter, who oversees U.S. Department of Agriculture's marketing agencies, made his remarks in a speech prepared for a national farm bargaining conference today.

"At times a referee may be necessary in bargaining, just as in a football game," he said. "We perform that regulatory function to some degree today, and an expansion may well be in order."

But he said farm bargaining "is essentially a function of the business community and it should remain as such. We do not want to see a huge federal bureaucracy developed to administer a farm bargaining program."

Bills have been introduced in Congress in recent years to set up a more formalized framework to help farmers bargain collectively with processors and other buyers.

Yeutter said a responsible bargaining association should provide leadership and major marketing education for its members.

"Perhaps most important of all, farm bargaining associations can help their members plan ahead, sell ahead, buy ahead," Yeutter said. "The proper timing of management decisions becomes essential as we move further toward a market-oriented farm economy."

Yeutter cautioned that farm groups should not seek too much in the way of legislation all at once. It may be better, he said, "to talk with farm bargaining legislation, rather than attempt to run with it."

Speaking Of Your Health

We watch our sons and their friends play karate games. Frankly, we are concerned by the violence involved.

We wonder why karate and its variations are not discouraged by schools and physical educators.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J., Tenn.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. J.:
Those who teach and engage in karate in any of its many forms insist it is completely safe.

Yet, in those who are not properly trained, the violence associated with karate may cause injuries more severe than those in other sports.

The key to safety, of course, lies in proper conditioning, close supervision, and a thorough knowledge of the potential injuries to those who are not versed in karate practices. What seems to make this sport even more violent is the screaming accompanying each move.

Accidents can occur even in the mildest sports if rigid safety rules and proper conditioning are not respected.

I put my hair up in curlers a great deal. Sometimes I go through most of the day with curlers in my hair.

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — Some Wall Streeters are becoming concerned that their battered stock market, which conceivably could have gained from the world's oil problems, will be dealt still another blow instead.

Hopes had risen on the expectation that Europeans and others would view the United States as the least affected by rising oil prices and thus afford a relatively safe haven for their investments.

The theory still looks good to securities analysts, but the suspicion is growing that foreign governments might take precisely the opposite viewpoint and call a halt to such transactions.

This is how one Wall Streeter, Peter J. Tanous, vice president and manager of international sales for Smith, Barney & Co., expressed his fears:

"As foreigners seek better havens for their capital, such as in the relatively more attractive dollar and U.S. stock market, they could aggravate their own country's balance of payments problems . . .

"Most countries simply will not let this happen. As the trend develops, many European nations may well again impose exchange controls or tighten existing ones prohibiting or severely restricting currency outflows."

And so, as Tanous views the situation, the securities industry becomes the victim of still another paradox: it is too attractive for its own good.

If European nations act to restrict outflows of their currencies — and, says Tanous, it could occur soon — "American brokers may be faced with a decline in European trading on U.S. exchanges such as one that occurred in 1970."

In that year, total foreign trading on U.S. exchanges dropped more than $6 billion, from $23.3 billion in 1969 to $17.2 billion. The removal of foreign support in that year was partly responsible for one of the sharpest price declines in decades.

European investors returned to the American market in 1972 and continued to be active through 1973.

Now, however, all European nations face a serious threat to their economic prospects, with the consequences expected to show up quickly in declining foreign trade balances and weakened currencies.

"It is hard to imagine how the European countries can make up a $33 billion annual shortfall on their oil bill," Tanous comments, adding that "even if they can afford it, the balance of payments effects may be devastating."

If foreign governments do restrict currency outflows, he maintains that

Three bald spots about the size of a quarter have appeared on my scalp. Could the curlers be the cause?

Mrs. G. W., Tex.

Dear Mrs. W.:

You have made an interesting observation and can now consider yourself a scientific contributor!

Two doctors at the Harvard Medical School reported small bald spots on the head of a nurse which coincided exactly with the bobby pins that tightly held down the nurse's cap.

The doctors believe that constant hair-pulling by curlers, bobby pins or other gadgets put traction on the hair and can be responsible for creating bald spots.

They believe that tension on the hair created by tight pony tails and "buns," may also cause bald spots.

If left uncorrected, the bald spots that are usually temporary, may become permanent.

Glenn Backs UMW Stand On Safety

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — America's coal miners should not have to work in conditions that are dangerous, former astronaut John Glenn said today.

Glenn, a candidate for the Democratic Senate nomination, made his comment in a telegram to United Mine Workers officials.

"I am horrified at the action of the U.S. Supreme Court," Glenn said. "No American worker should have to work in conditions that are dangerous."

Glenn said recent health and safety legislation to protect America's mine workers was dealt a near fatal blow by the court's action.

Glenn also accused the Nixon administration of failure to enforce the laws.

"It is clear . . . the present administration is more concerned with protecting the high profit of its friends than with protecting the lives of American workers," he said.

The Supreme Court ruled last week that miners may not strike over safety matters but must continue mining while the issue is arbitrated.

Pope Paul VI Observes Comet

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI says he saw Comet Kohoutek and he felt "the sense of the cosmic mystery."

"We searched for the comet in the skies after we were told of the trajectory of this fugitive pilgrim of space," the Pope told a crowd of 3,500 in St. Peter's Square Sunday. "We intensely observed it."

The Pope said he saw the comet from his terrace "with the aid of a modest telescope."

"It could be said this comet was nothing special, a bright point in space, bigger than Venus, always bright but less brilliant the night we made the observation."

He cited a psalm: "The heavens show forth the glory of God, and the firmament declares the work of his hands."

Bully For Him

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—The President of the United States was as touchy as a boil, and now he had an audience composed mainly of White House correspondents, cartoonists and others who had been critical of him and some of his trusted associates.

The President, his jowls a'quiver, said, "You are like the character in John Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, 'the man with the muckrake.' He could look no way but downward at the muckrake in his hands, the man who was offered a celestial crown for his muckrake but who would neither look up nor regard the crown he was offered, but continued to rake to himself the filth on the floor."

The President got a lot of other things off his chest that night. He condemned the press for undermining public confidence in the government and harming public morale by looking only at the bad sides of things. He called the media "reckless and irresponsible" in its exposes, and made it clear that he had his own private "enemies list."

President Nixon? Nope. President Theodore Roosevelt, circa 1906.

He was further angered when his outburst—made in the course of his speech at the Gridiron Club dinner, at which everything said was to be off-the-record—was "leaked" all over Washington the following morning. This led him to call an on-the-record press conference a few weeks later. His tone was more moderate this time, though he did not back up on "reckless and irresponsible." Indeed, he had a few words of praise for writers and cartoonists who attacked social ills "legitimately."

But by word and deed, the President was at war with the press, as Presidents before and after him often found themselves.

"Teddy was furious at Ida Tarbell, Lincoln Steffens, Samuel Hopkins Adams, David Graham Phillips, Upton Sinclair and other writers and their editors," observes historian Clark Kinnaird. "He was against anybody who aroused public feeling against the Administration and its supporters. On the whole, he did not think it fair to expose corruption in the big cities, the shady deals by Republican members of Congress, and the finagling of bureaucrats. He was particularly incensed by the revelation that the Administration had taken no action on cynical adulteration of food and drug products. Ida Tarbell was hardly welcome at the White House after her devastating treatise on the ruthlessness of John D. Rockefeller in making himself oligarch of the petroleum world, and the first hard-money billionaire."

"Roosevelt was sensitive to what he considered the lese majesty of cartoonists. No President since Lincoln was caricatured more disrespectfully. But it was the investigative reporters—the 'muckrakers,' as he named them—who mainly gave him umbrage."

It all sounds so familiar . . .

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

We watch our sons and their friends play karate games. Frankly, we are concerned by the violence involved.

We wonder why karate and its variations are not discouraged by schools and physical educators.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J., Tenn.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. J.: Those who teach and engage in karate in any of its many forms insist it is completely safe.

Yet, in those who are not properly trained, the violence associated with karate may cause injuries more severe than those in other sports.

The key to safety, of course, lies in proper conditioning, close supervision, and a thorough knowledge of the potential injuries to those who are not versed in karate practices. What seems to make this sport even more violent is the screaming accompanying each move.

Accidents can occur even in the mildest sports if rigid safety rules and proper conditioning are not respected.

I put my hair up in curlers a great deal. Sometimes I go through most of the day with curlers in my hair.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Some Wall Streeters are becoming concerned that their battered stock market, which conceivably could have gained from the world's oil problems, will be dealt still another blow instead.

Hopes had risen on the expectation that Europeans and others would view the United States as the least affected by rising oil prices and thus afford a relatively safe haven for their investments.

The theory still looks good to securities analysts, but the suspicion is growing that foreign governments might take precisely the opposite viewpoint and call a halt to such transactions.

This is how one Wall Streeter, Peter J. Tanous, vice president and manager of international sales for Smith, Barney & Co., expressed his fears:

"As foreigners seek better havens for their capital, such as in the relatively more attractive dollar and U.S. stock market, they could aggravate their own country's balance of payments problems . . .

"Most countries simply will not let this happen. As the trend develops, many European nations may well again impose exchange controls or tighten existing ones prohibiting or severely restricting currency outflows."

And so, as Tanous views the situation, the securities industry becomes the victim of still another paradox: it is too attractive for its own good.

If European nations act to restrict outflows of their currencies — and, says Tanous, it could occur soon — "American brokers may be faced with a decline in European trading on U.S. exchanges such as one that occurred in 1970."

In that year, total foreign trading on U.S. exchanges dropped more than $6 billion, from $23.3 billion in 1969 to $17.2 billion. The removal of foreign support in that year was partly responsible for one of the sharpest price declines in decades.

European investors returned to the American market in 1972 and continued to be active through 1973.

Now, however, all European nations face a serious threat to their economic prospects, with the consequences expected to show up quickly in declining foreign trade balances and weakened currencies.

"It is hard to imagine how the European countries can make up a $33 billion annual shortfall on their oil bill," Tanous comments, adding that "even if they can afford it, the balance of payments effects may be devastating."

If foreign governments do restrict currency outflows, he maintains that

Three bald spots about the size of a quarter have appeared on my scalp. Could the curlers be the cause?

Mrs. G. W., Tex.

Dear Mrs. W.: You have made an interesting observation and can now consider yourself a scientific contributor!

Two doctors at the Harvard Medical School reported small bald spots on the head of a nurse which coincided exactly with the bobby pins that tightly held down the nurse's cap.

The doctors believe that constant hair-pulling by curlers, bobby pins or other gadgets put traction on the hair and can be responsible for creating bald spots.

They believe that tension on the hair created by tight pony tails and "buns," may also cause bald spots.

If left uncorrected, the bald spots that are usually temporary, may become permanent.

Glenn Backs UMW Stand On Safety

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — America's coal miners should not have to work in conditions that are dangerous, former astronaut John Glenn said today.

Glenn, a candidate for the Democratic Senate nomination, made his comment in a telegram to United Mine Workers officials. "I am horrified at the action of the U.S. Supreme Court," Glenn said. "No American worker should have to work in conditions that are dangerous."

Glenn said recent health and safety legislation to protect America's mine workers was dealt a near fatal blow by the court's action.

Glenn also accused the Nixon administration of failure to enforce the laws.

"It is clear . . . the present administration is more concerned with protecting the high profit of its friends than with protecting the lives of American workers," he said.

The Supreme Court ruled last week that miners may not strike over safety matters but must continue mining while the issue is arbitrated.

Pope Paul VI Observes Comet

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI says he saw Comet Kohoutek and he felt "the sense of the cosmic mystery."

"We searched for the comet in the skies after we were told of the trajectory of this fugitive pilgrim of space," the Pope told a crowd of 3,500 in St. Peter's Square Sunday. "We intensely observed it."

The Pope said he saw the comet from his terrace "with the aid of a modest telescope."

"It could be said this comet was nothing special, a bright point in space, bigger than Venus, always bright but less brilliant the night we made the observation."

He cited a psalm: "The heavens show forth the glory of God, and the firmament declares the work of his hands."

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for sticking up for the poodle lover. We know how she feels because we have an 80-pound boxer named Gus, whom we love like some parents love a child. Gus is well-trained and far more obedient than some of the neighborhood children. We wouldn't think of taking a trip without Gus, and we also spell in front of him because he understands everything we say.

I know a woman who gave her dving parakeet mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and revived him. This may seem strange to some people, but an animal lover would understand. Do you?

PHOEBE (GUS'S MOTHER')

DEAR MOTHER: Do I? I just sent $30 to The Beaver Dam, Wis., Veterinary Clinic for spaying a Dalmation named "Dear Abby."

An employee of the Humane Society in Beaver Dam informed me that they had a lovable mutt named Dear Abby," who, because she wasn't spayed, was having difficulty finding a home. He said they were praying for a "miracle" because if they couldn't place "Abby" soon they would have to destroy her.

Well, they prayed, I payed, and "Abby" was payed.

DEAR ABBY: I sometimes receive a letter and notice that the postage stamp on the envelope has not been canceled, so I just pick it off and use it again.

Would you call that cheating?

T.G.

DEAR T.G.: I wouldn't call it being honorable.

DEAR ABBY: A situation in the grade school (grades 1-7) my children attend has caused concern. No toilet paper, soap, or towels are kept in the bathrooms. The students must ask for "supplies" from the teacher or the principal. The supplies are kept in each room in a "tote bag" to hand-carry down the hall or into the bathroom adjacent to the classroom.

Many students, rather than face the embarrassment of asking for the tote bag, and then be seen carrying it, will (1) hold their needs until recess at which time they use the bathroom, without using any sanitary supplies at all, or (2) try to wait until they get home at the end of the school day.

I approached the principal. He listened patiently, then told me that because in the past the children had abused the supplies when left in the bathroom, the only alternative, as he saw it, was this method.

My suggestion for implementing a student bathroom patrol, and-or new types of dispensers was not readily received.

According to the principal, this is not just a local problem. I'd like to know if other schools have found a better solution to this problem.

CONCERNED PARENT:
AUGUSTA, GA.

DEAR CONCERNED: We shall see. In the meantime, write to the National Committee For Support Of The Public Schools, Suite 410, Wilde Lake Village Green, Columbia, Md. 21044. Also your local chapter of American Civil Liberties Union may be helpful.

Court Eyes Press Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to consider whether states can demand that newspapers give free space to political candidates for replies to editorial attacks.

The justices accepted the case for argument on the merits but left themselves the option of deciding, after hearing the arguments, that they do not have jurisdiction in the case.

The issue reached the justices in a case from Florida in which the state supreme court upheld a 1913 state law requiring that newspapers which "assail" the personal character or official record of a candidate must print his reply with equal prominence.

Major news organizations called the Florida court decision an unprecedented violation of First Amendment rights.

The Florida justices were equally adamant in seeing their support of the law as an enhancement of First Amendment values for all citizens at a time of growing concentration in press ownership.

Major Atomic Plant Mishap Chances Nil

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Atomic Energy Commission official says the preliminary results of a scientific study suggests there will never be a major accident in a nuclear power plant.

This was a conclusion of Dr. Harbert Kouts, the AEC's director of reactor safety research, who commented on the results of the study.

The odds on a major catastrophe at a nuclear plant were given in the study as "once in 1 billion to once in 10 billion years" for a given reactor.

Kouts said that the study's figures show that "even with the 1,000 reactors expected to be operating by the year 2000, it would be 1,000 to 10,000 years before any given reactor might be expected to have an accident."

Thus, he said, "for the 100 to 200 years we expect to be using fissionable uranium before supplies run out ... we would expect never to have a catastrophic accident by an overwhelming probability factor."

The study was conducted for the AEC at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Its findings were reported by AEC Chairman Dixy Lee Ray and Kouts in separate interviews.

Kouts described a catastrophic accident as one in which large quantities of radioactive materials would be released, killing "thousands of people, possibly 5,000 to 10,000 although the figures are very shaky."

He said the study tended to confirm AEC's estimates that chances of such an accident are "so low as to be negligible."

He and Dr. Ray also reported that the MIT preliminary findings also projected the possibility of a less severe accident as once in a million to once in 10 million years for any given reactor.

Kouts described this type accident as "comparable in its consequences to the crash of a jumbo-jet aircraft that might kill 200 people or so."

Dr. Ray said the study took nearly two years and $2 million and was conducted by Dr. Norman C. Rasmussen, a professor of nuclear engineering at M.I.T.

Kouts said that Rasmussen's figures still are preliminary and subject to comment from other scientists and from AEC critics before formal release.

Old King Powder Plant Recalled

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — Exploding fireworks mark the end of another day of entertainment at Kings Island amusement Park during the summer months.

But, for a few old timers within earshot, it is a reminder of hundreds of tragedies at the old King Powder Co. plant, before it was demolished in 1958.

The amusement park now sits on the site of the massive munitions plant. The sister Peters Cartridge Co., plant abandoned in 1944, is used for preparing art displays for the park.

Warren County Sheriff Roy Wallace grew up in Kings Mills. When he was seven, his father was killed at the King plant. "My dad was wearing a special mask because of some new powder they were testing. He managed to breathe some in and he died," Wallace said.

That was in 1932. "The town was divided then," the sheriff said. "King people lived on one side, Peters on the other. There wasn't a single private home in the town—the companies owned it all."

"It was about like a coal mining town, I guess, but it had things the rest of the county didn't have for years and years."

These included two hotels, a gymnasium where all county tournaments were held, a library, indoor flush toilets and electricity.

"We were used to hearing explosions at the powder plant," he said.

"You grew up hearing explosions and then learning that somebody's daddy had been killed."

The King Powder Co. was founded in 1877. The Peters Cartridge Co. came later.

The town became the industrial hub of the county, particularly during World War I and World War II. King was one of the nation's largest manufacturers of black powder and green powder.

Many explosions took the lives of employees through the years. Big blasts in 1890 and 1942 killed nearly 100 persons altogether.

Peters sold out to Remington in 1934 and the operation moved to Connecticut.

"We never had the large-type explosions like at King," a former chief chemist said. "When King blew, it was serious."

Edna Bowyer, Warren County Recorder, was the last employee to leave King Powder when it closed.

"Things began to wind down when Peters Cartridge left," she said. "It had been a company town, but other people began to move in then."

"I couldn't say there was an explosion there every year. You couldn't tell when they would come, but there were a lot."

The old buildings which housed King had to be razed after it shut down, she recalled. The buildings were contaminated with old black gun powder.

FDA Probes Air Illness At Columbus

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is investigating an illness which struck 19 passengers last week on a chartered flight from a recreational development here to Columbus, Ohio.

Marlin Luther, director of environmental health for the Pueblo Health Department, said the FDA "is trying to tabulate the whole thing and put it together."

Luther added that Pueblo Health Department laboratory tests produced "only non-pathogenic types of bacteria" from food and water samples obtained at the development, Pueblo West.

Only harmless bacteria were found in samples of water and food and on equipment and employees hands at Pueblo West, he said. Luther added the results were inconclusive because "there's always the possibility we might have missed something."

Of 61 passengers on the one-day tour of Pueblo West, 19 became ill and three were hospitalized a short time after the plane returned to Columbus Jan. 9.

Officials of the charter airline, owned by the company which runs Pueblo West, said food served on the flight to here was prepared by an Ohio catering service.

Luther said reports haven't been received yet on food tests being made at Columbus.

Ease Rules On River Pollution

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Ira L. Whitman, director of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, says the agency has proposed reducing some water quality standards for the lower Cuyahoga River.

The proposed changes would affect the portion of the river running through a heavily industrialized area between Harvard Avenue in Cleveland and Lake Erie.

Whitman said the reduction was necessary because the EPA's present standards cannot be met, even with the best available technology.

The relaxed standards still are so tough that industry will have to use the best available technology to control pollution, he said.

Whitman said the proposed changes include one that would raise the acceptable concentration of ammonia and phenols in the water and permit water temperatures three to eight degrees higher than under the stricter standards, depending on the month.

In July, for example, a temperature as high as 95 degrees would be permitted, five degrees higher than the present requirement.

Whitman said under the new standards the river would not need to contain any dissolved oxygen from July 1 to Oct. 15. The present standards, adopted last July for most of the state's surface waters, do have such an oxygen requirement.

Moorer Cleared In Spying Story

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has emerged as a central figure in reports of military spying against Henry A. Kissinger in 1971.

But Pentagon associates of the nation's top uniformed officer say he has not lost the confidence of President Nixon, and, in fact, received notice well in advance from the White House that he was being nominated for a second two-year term as JCS chairman in 1972.

The Pentagon officials were commenting in response to a report by the Chicago Tribune that Nixon wanted to fire Moorer after the White House investigative unit known as the plumbers told the President of the spying against Kissinger, then a foreign policy adviser and head of the National Security Council (NSC).

The Tribune said it had not learned why Nixon did not fire Moorer.

Meanwhile, the New York Times reported in today's editions that David Young, a member of the plumbers unit, submitted a lengthy report in early 1972 that concluded that Moorer had received secret NSC documents taken from Kissinger's office.

The Times story, which quoted well-placed sources, said Young's report of his investigation into security leaks showed that classified materials also were provided to syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

On Sunday, the Chicago SunTimes said the plumbers group accused an unidentified U.S. military man of rifling Kissinger's briefcase during one of his visits to China. It said Saturday that Kissinger ordered a tap placed on the telephone of then-Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird in 1971 in an attempt to find the source of leaks from secret diplomatic dealings.

Kissinger, now secretary of state, reacted strongly to the telephone-tapping report Sunday. "I think it is a malicious, vicious, outrageous lie," he told reporters while flying from Jerusalem to Aswan, Egypt, on a Middle East peace mission.

The spate of newspaper accounts followed contentions by some White House and Senate sources last week that a high-level military plot existed against Kissinger.

The SunTimes quoted top civilian officials at the Pentagon as saying the evidence gathered by the plumbers regarding the military spying was inconclusive, and it said one official found nothing in it to implicate Moorer or any other top military leader.

Equal Rights Amendment May Be Revived By Ohio Senate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Vocal and spirited backers of the federal women's Equal Rights Amendment, who saw success elude them in Ohio last year, have another day coming.

Thanks to endorsement of the National AFL-CIO and help from Gov. John J. Gilligan, the amendment barring discrimination on the basis of sex now has the votes to clear the last remaining roadblock, backers say. The roadblock is the Ohio Senate, more specifically the Financial Institutions, Insurance, and Elections Committee which voted 6-3 last year to kill it.

A new vote of 6-3 or at least 5-4 in favor now is probable.

Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, Senate sponsor of the proposal which the House approved last March 28 by a vote of 56-40, predicts passage but wants to avoid a possible procedural hang up.

"We want to do it fast, get it through the committee, the Rules Committee, and out on the floor without too much fanfare," she said.

The possible hang up could come,

Sen. Valiquette said, over how to revive the amendment in view of the committee vote last year not to recommend passage. That vote was followed by a 5-4 committee vote against reconsideration.

In years gone by, those votes may have been enough to kill a proposal. However, under more recent practice, a committee chairman, in the absence of a vote to indefinitely postpone, can rule almost alone on the life or death of a bill.

Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, committee chairman who presided over last year's crowded and highly publicized hearings, indicated he will not stand in the way of efforts to revive the amendment. He was one of the three who voted for it.

2 Youths Indicted For Lima Slaying

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Ross D. Caudill and Calvin McPherson, both 18 and of Lima, were indicted by an Allen County grand jury Monday on aggravated murder charges in the slaying of policeman William Brown.

No arraignment dates were set. The two were being held in the county jail in lieu of $100,000 bond.

If convicted, the two could face the death penalty under Ohio's new criminal code.

Brown, 40, was shot to death Jan. 5 when he interrupted a service station holdup.

Caudill and McPherson were arrested five days later.

Board Opposes Teacher Bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state Board of Education Monday approved a resolution opposing proposed bills that would "remove the responsibility for teacher education and certification" from the state Department of Education.

Despite an impassioned plea from board member Thaddeus Garrett of Akron, the board passed the resolution 17-to-2 calling for the Department of Education to retain control of teacher education and licensing.

Garrett and Board President John Meckstroth clashed verbally during discussion of the resolution. The Akron board member claimed Meckstroth should have warned members of the impending vote on a measure of "such major significance."

Two bills now in the General Assembly would set up a citizens' committee, including teachers, to license educators.

Garrett claimed to pass the board's resolution would be like saying to the state's teachers, "You do not rank high as professionals... you are not capable of governing."

Another heated argument developed during discussion of a resolution asking school districts to roll back starting times to allow students sufficient daylight "to insure a safe, hazard-free journey to school."

The board rejected the measure, by a vote of 17-to-4.

In other action, the board called for changes in the Ohio Revised Code to make sure school systems don't lose money because of local property reassessments. The Board noted that under a 1971 ruling of the Ohio Supreme Court and related action by the General Assembly, school systems can lose money if county auditors do not make periodic adjustments.

The Board also appealed to Gov. John Gilligan and members of the legislature to exempt part-time public school employees from unemployment compensation during times school is not in session.

A new Division of Educational Redesign and Renewal was created within the Department of Education. The new division will coordinate development of in-service teacher education materials and curriculum publications not available through commercial publishers. The division will be headed by Virginia Lloyd Kunkle.

The board also approved plans to encourage teaching the metric system in Ohio schools.

The board said materials should be developed and distributed to prepare teachers to teach the measuring systems. Plans call for teacher preparation to begin in June with two-to-three-day workshops throughout the state.

In other action, the board approved teacher-training programs at six colleges in Ohio, but gave only interim approval to four other institutions.

Ashland and Findlay colleges, Miami University, Ohio Northern University, Ohio University and the University of Toledo received full approval.

Given interim approval, until June, 1975, were the University of Cincinnati, Central State University, Urbana College and Wilmington College. The four were given until then to correct deficiencies in their programs.

Moorer Cleared In Spying Story

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has emerged as a central figure in reports of military spying against Henry A. Kissinger in 1971.

But Pentagon associates of the nation's top uniformed officer say he has not lost the confidence of President Nixon, and, in fact, received notice well in advance from the White House that he was being nominated for a second two-year term as JCS chairman in 1972.

The Pentagon officials were commenting in response to a report by the Chicago Tribune that Nixon wanted to fire Moorer after the White House investigative unit known as the plumbers told the President of the spying against Kissinger, then a foreign policy adviser and head of the National Security Council (NSC).

The Tribune said it had not learned why Nixon did not fire Moorer.

Meanwhile, the New York Times reported in today's editions that David Young, a member of the plumbers unit, submitted a lengthy report in early 1972 that concluded that Moorer had received secret NSC documents taken from Kissinger's office.

The Times story, which quoted well-placed sources, said Young's report of his investigation into security leaks showed that classified materials also were provided to syndicated columnist Jack Anderson.

On Sunday, the Chicago SunTimes said the plumbers group accused an unidentified U.S. military man of rifling Kissinger's briefcase during one of his visits to China. It said Saturday that Kissinger ordered a tap placed on the telephone of then-Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird in 1971 in an attempt to find the source of leaks from secret diplomatic dealings.

Kissinger, now secretary of state, reacted strongly to the telephone-tapping report Sunday. "I think it is a malicious, vicious, outrageous lie," he told reporters while flying from Jerusalem to Aswan, Egypt, on a Middle East peace mission.

The spate of newspaper accounts followed contentions by some White House and Senate sources last week that a high-level military plot existed against Kissinger.

The SunTimes quoted top civilian officials at the Pentagon as saying the evidence gathered by the plumbers regarding the military spying was inconclusive, and it said one official found nothing in it to implicate Moorer or any other top military leader.

Equal Rights Amendment May Be Revived By Ohio Senate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Vocal and spirited backers of the federal women's Equal Rights Amendment, who saw success elude them in Ohio last year, have another day coming.

Thanks to endorsement of the National AFL-CIO and help from Gov. John J. Gilligan, the amendment barring discrimination on the basis of sex now has the votes to clear the last remaining roadblock, backers say. The roadblock is the Ohio Senate, more specifically the Financial Institutions, Insurance, and Elections Committee which voted 6-3 last year to kill it.

A new vote of 6-3 or at least 5-4 in favor now is probable.

Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, Senate sponsor of the proposal which the House approved last March 28 by a vote of 56-40, predicts passage but wants to avoid a possible procedural hang up.

"We want to do it fast, get it through the committee, the Rules Committee, and out on the floor without too much fanfare," she said.

The possible hang up could come,

Sen. Valiquette said, over how to revive the amendment in view of the committee vote last year not to recommend passage. That vote was followed by a 5-4 committee vote against reconsideration.

In years gone by, those votes may have been enough to kill a proposal. However, under more recent practice, a committee chairman, in the absence of a vote to indefinitely postpone, can rule almost alone on the life or death of a bill.

Sen. Stanley J. Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, committee chairman who presided over last year's crowded and highly publicized hearings, indicated he will not stand in the way of efforts to revive the amendment. He was one of the three who voted for it.

Learn To Sew II for girls 8 through 11 and will be held Tuesdays at the Y from 7 to 8 p.m. for eight weeks, also starting Jan. 22. This class is for girls with some sewing experience to learn to make a long or short skirt or fake fur hat from a pattern.

Tailoring Class for women will be held 12:30 to 3 p.m. Wednesdays for 10 weeks beginning Jan. 23. This is a 25 hour course held at the Y with two weeks between the first and second class. Adults can learn to tailor a lady's suit, blazer or coat from wool or wool-like woven fabric or wool doubleknit. Pre-registration is necessary for all three sewing classes and a minimum of 10 is needed in each class. Additional information is available at the Y.

2 Youths Indicted For Lima Slaying

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Ross D. Caudill and Calvin McPherson, both 18 and of Lima, were indicted by an Allen County grand jury Monday on aggravated murder charges in the slaying of policeman William Brown.

No arraignment dates were set. The two were being held in the county jail in lieu of $100,000 bond.

If convicted, the two could face the death penalty under Ohio's new criminal code.

Brown, 40, was shot to death Jan. 5 when he interrupted a service station holdup.

Caudill and McPherson were arrested five days later.

Board Opposes Teacher Bills

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state Board of Education Monday approved a resolution opposing proposed bills that would "remove the responsibility for teacher education and certification" from the state Department of Education.

Despite an impassioned plea from board member Thaddeus Garrett of Akron, the board passed the resolution 17-to-2 calling for the Department of Education to retain control of teacher education and licensing.

Garrett and Board President John Meckstroth clashed verbally during discussion of the resolution. The Akron board member claimed Meckstroth should have warned members of the impending vote on a measure of "such major significance."

Two bills now in the General Assembly would set up a citizens' committee, including teachers, to license educators.

Garrett claimed to pass the board's resolution would be like saying to the state's teachers, "You do not rank high as professionals... you are not capable of governing."

Another heated argument developed during discussion of a resolution asking school districts to roll back starting times to allow students sufficient daylight "to insure a safe, hazard-free journey to school."

The board rejected the measure, by a vote of 17-to-4.

In other action, the board called for changes in the Ohio Revised Code to make sure school systems don't lose money because of local property reassessments. The Board noted that under a 1971 ruling of the Ohio Supreme Court and related action by the General Assembly, school systems can lose money if county auditors do not make periodic adjustments.

The Board also appealed to Gov. John Gilligan and members of the legislature to exempt part-time public school employees from unemployment compensation during times school is not in session.

A new Division of Educational Redesign and Renewal was created within the Department of Education.

The new division will coordinate development of in-service teacher education materials and curriculum publications not available through commercial publishers. The division will be headed by Virginia Lloyd Kunkle.

The board also approved plans to encourage teaching the metric system in Ohio schools.

The board said materials should be developed and distributed to prepare teachers to teach the measuring systems. Plans call for teacher preparation to begin in June with two-to-three-day workshops throughout the state.

In other action, the board approved teacher-training programs at six colleges in Ohio, but gave only interim approval to four other institutions.

Ashland and Findlay colleges, Miami University, Ohio Northern University, Ohio University and the University of Toledo received full approval.

Given interim approval, until June, 1975, were the University of Cincinnati, Central State University, Urbana College and Wilmington College. The four were given until then to correct deficiencies in their programs.

Ohio is in the midst of a January thaw, with readings today expected to reach the low 40s to the low 50s.

The state passed its first night in several weeks in which the temperature did not dip below freezing. And the forecast calls for another one tonight.

A weak cold front from the upper St. Lawrence Valley through Central lower Michigan was to pass north of Ohio today, holding down temperatures slightly in the northern counties.

John Wayne Faces Harvard Students

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor John Wayne has always been known as a two-fisted cowboy who doesn't back down from a showdown. But he might meet his match at Harvard University.

"I don't know a damned thing about it except they challenged me to come to Harvard," Wayne said Monday before leaving for Boston and a meeting arranged by the staff of the Harvard Lampoon.

Lampoon President Jim Downey said: "Angry groups of both Wayne supporters and Wayne detractors are planning to come and be heard."

Little Girl Survives Rare Illness

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP)—Tricia Dawn Hazelett's heart stopped beating more than a month ago and she was too weak to breathe, but now it appears she has a good chance of leading a normal life.

Tricia, now two months old, was three weeks old when she was struck with an hereditary disease which doctors say has stricken only 50 other persons in medical history. It is known as the "maple syrup disease" from the smell of the victim's urine.

Tricia's body is unable to break down certain acids in food, causing a toxic buildup which weakens the central nervous system.

Three times she has had complete blood transfusions, she had lost her sight and three times she stopped breathing.

Doctors have been feeding her through tubes and they now say she has regained her sight and there is no apparent brain damage.

James Hazelett, the infant's father, said the federally funded Clinical Research Center of University Hospitals in Cleveland is paying the medical bills, and a number of doctors are studying the case.

The disease was originally diagnosed by Dr. Richard A. Moore.

January Thaw Widens Push

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gusty winds whipped across the Northern states today as a midwinter thaw spread into much of the nation chilled by recent cold snaps and heavy snows.

The rise in temperature brought dense fog to a large area from the Gulf of Mexico to the lower Missouri and Ohio valleys. Zero visibilities were reported at Tulsa, Okla., and New Orleans, La.

The winds topped 80 m.p.h. at Cape Blanco, Ore., where temperatures were in the 50s. At Great Falls, Mont., with readings in the 40s, gusts reached 50 m.p.h., and Watertown, N.Y., clocked 40 m.p.h. winds and 30-degree temperatures.

Storm warnings were in effect for the northern Pacific Coast, and gale warnings were posted for the central California coast, the Great Lakes and the northern New England coast.

The thaw missed northern portions of Minnesota and North Dakota. International Falls, Minn., and Grand Forks, N.D. collected 2 inches of snow and remained in subzero cold.

Rain in excess of an inch fell over Oregon and some showers sprinkled the lower Mississippi Valley.

Clear skies prevailed from the southern Plateau and the southern Rockies into the Plains.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 5 at International Falls, Minn., to 72 at Key West, Fla.

Physical Exam Pushed For Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House physician Walter Tkach says he plans to ask President Nixon to make an appointment for a long overdue physical examination.

Tkach noted Monday that the President had been scheduled for a medical examination at Bethesda Naval Medical Center on Dec. 18 but delayed it on grounds he was too busy.

Tkach said now that Nixon has returned from an 18-day stay at the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., he will ask him to set a date for the physical.

Ohio's Sixth Congressional District. Pickaway County is in the Sixth District.

In making his announcement, Harsha confirmed the fact that he had seriously considered retiring from the Congress upon the completion of his present term of office because of personal and economic considerations.

"In deciding upon my future course of action," Harsha stated, "I have weighed many factors. I deeply appreciate the honor and privilege the people of the Sixth District have given me by selecting me to represent them in the House of Representatives over the past 13 years and feel we have made remarkable progress in improving the economy and industrial development of our area during this period. However, much still remains to be accomplished, and I believe I can contribute significantly to further progress as a result of my seniority and my position as a member of the Republican leadership in Congress."

The Ohio legislator has served for the past three years as the ranking Republican member of the prestigious Public Works Committee. This Committee has jurisdiction over legislation dealing with water pollution, highway construction and safety, economic development, Appalachian development and other areas of critical importance to southern Ohio.

Harsha stated that he has found his position as ranking minority member most challenging and indicated his decision to run for re-election was based to a large degree upon the importance he attributed to the work of this Committee and to the proposed change in committee structure which will further enhance the importance of the Public Works Committee by expanding its jurisdiction into new areas pertaining to railroads, aviation, waterways and other transportation matters.

"Having served on this highly important committee during my entire tenure in the Congress," Harsha said, "I believe my experience and expertise on public works legislation will enable me to make a substantial contribution to matters which will have a most important impact upon the economy and future of our Nation."

Harsha indicated that perhaps the deciding factor in reaching his decision to announce his candidacy was the tremendous outpouring of warm and generous messages from his constituents expressing their appreciation for his past efforts and strongly urging him to continue to represent them in the future.

"I feel the satisfaction I shall derive by continuing to serve the people of southern Ohio to the very best of my ability will more than offset the economic and personal factors which caused me to consider retiring from Congress," Harsha concluded. "At no time in our brief history has our Nation been confronted with so many problems of great magnitude — problems involving our economy, world peace, the energy shortage, political and constitutional matters. The resolution of these problems will be no easy task, but if it is the will of the people of Ohio's Sixth Congressional District, I would very much like to return to the Congress for another term and have the continued opportunity of working toward their solution."

Students Protest Tanaka Visit

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A battalion of troops in full battle dress and scores of armored cars were called out today to keep 5,000 anti-Japanese students from storming the grounds of President Suharto's Freedom Palace while he met with visiting Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka of Japan.

There were a number of bloody clashes, and the students smashed or burned about 50 Japanese-made cars and motorcycles in the vicinity of the palace.

Troops battled 2,000 other students at a high school near the palace. Unconfirmed reports said six of the students were wounded there by the troops' bayonets and rifle butts.

In one clash, the students attacked the soldiers with bricks and stones. One soldier was led away bleeding profusely from head wounds.

"Go to hell with your aid, Tanaka-san," said the banners at a rally on one campus where an effigy of Tanaka was burned.

Tanaka arrived late Monday for the last stop on a tour of five Southeast Asia nations. In each he has been the target of demonstrators charging Japan with economic imperialism in the area, but most of the demonstrations have been peaceful.

There were no injuries. The plane suffered damage to a wing. No citation was issued, police said.

John Wayne Faces Harvard Students

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor John Wayne has always been known as a two-fisted cowboy who doesn't back down from a showdown. But he might meet his match at Harvard University.

"I don't know a damned thing about it except they challenged me to come to Harvard," Wayne said Monday before leaving for Boston and a meeting arranged by the staff of the Harvard Lampoon.

Lampoon President Jim Downey said: "Angry groups of both Wayne supporters and Wayne detractors are planning to come and be heard."

Little Girl Survives Rare Illness

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP)—Tricia Dawn Hazelett's heart stopped beating more than a month ago and she was too weak to breathe, but now it appears she has a good chance of leading a normal life.

Tricia, now two months old, was three weeks old when she was struck with an hereditary disease which doctors say has stricken only 50 other persons in medical history. It is known as the "maple syrup disease" from the smell of the victim's urine.

Tricia's body is unable to break down certain acids in food, causing a toxic buildup which weakens the central nervous system.

Three times she has had complete blood transfusions, she had lost her sight and three times she stopped breathing.

Doctors have been feeding her through tubes and they now say she has regained her sight and there is no apparent brain damage.

James Hazelett, the infant's father, said the federally funded Clinical Research Center of University Hospitals in Cleveland is paying the medical bills, and a number of doctors are studying the case.

The disease was originally diagnosed by Dr. Richard A. Moore.

January Thaw Widens Push

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gusty winds whipped across the Northern states today as a midwinter thaw spread into much of the nation chilled by recent cold snaps and heavy snows.

The rise in temperature brought dense fog to a large area from the Gulf of Mexico to the lower Missouri and Ohio valleys. Zero visibilities were reported at Tulsa, Okla., and New Orleans, La.

The winds topped 80 m.p.h. at Cape Blanco, Ore., where temperatures were in the 50s. At Great Falls, Mont., with readings in the 40s, gusts reached 50 m.p.h., and Watertown, N.Y., clocked 40 m.p.h. winds and 30-degree temperatures.

Storm warnings were in effect for the northern Pacific Coast, and gale warnings were posted for the central California coast, the Great Lakes and the northern New England coast.

The thaw missed northern portions of Minnesota and North Dakota. International Falls, Minn., and Grand Forks, N.D. collected 2 inches of snow and remained in subzero cold.

Rain in excess of an inch fell over Oregon and some showers sprinkled the lower Mississippi Valley.

Clear skies prevailed from the southern Plateau and the southern Rockies into the Plains.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 5 at International Falls, Minn., to 72 at Key West, Fla.

Physical Exam Pushed For Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP)—White House physician Walter Tkach says he plans to ask President Nixon to make an appointment for a long overdue physical examination.

Tkach noted Monday that the President had been scheduled for a medical examination at Bethesda Naval Medical Center on Dec. 18 but delayed it on grounds he was too busy.

Tkach said now that Nixon has returned from an 18-day stay at the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., he will ask him to set a date for the physical.

Ohio's Sixth Congressional District. Pickaway County is in the Sixth District.

In making his announcement, Harsha confirmed the fact that he had seriously considered retiring from the Congress upon the completion of his present term of office because of personal and economic considerations.

"In deciding upon my future course of action," Harsha stated, "I have weighed many factors. I deeply appreciate the honor and privilege the people of the Sixth District have given me by selecting me to represent them in the House of Representatives over the past 13 years and feel we have made remarkable progress in improving the economy and industrial development of our area during this period. However, much still remains to be accomplished, and I believe I can contribute significantly to further progress as a result of my seniority and my position as a member of the Republican leadership in Congress."

The Ohio legislator has served for the past three years as the ranking Republican member of the prestigious Public Works Committee. This Committee has jurisdiction over legislation dealing with water pollution, highway construction and safety, economic development, Appalachian development and other areas of critical importance to southern Ohio.

Harsha stated that he has found his position as ranking minority member most challenging and indicated his decision to run for re-election was based to a large degree upon the importance he attributed to the work of this Committee and to the proposed change in committee structure which will further enhance the importance of the Public Works Committee by expanding its jurisdiction into new areas pertaining to railroads, aviation, waterways and other transportation matters.

"Having served on this highly important committee during my entire tenure in the Congress," Harsha said, "I believe my experience and expertise on public works legislation will enable me to make a substantial contribution to matters which will have a most important impact upon the economy and future of our Nation."

Harsha indicated that perhaps the deciding factor in reaching his decision to announce his candidacy was the tremendous outpouring of warm and generous messages from his constituents expressing their appreciation for his past efforts and strongly urging him to continue to represent them in the future.

"I feel the satisfaction I shall derive by continuing to serve the people of southern Ohio to the very best of my ability will more than offset the economic and personal factors which caused me to consider retiring from Congress," Harsha concluded. "At no time in our brief history has our Nation been confronted with so many problems of great magnitude — problems involving our economy, world peace, the energy shortage, political and constitutional matters. The resolution of these problems will be no easy task, but if it is the will of the people of Ohio's Sixth Congressional District, I would very much like to return to the Congress for another term and have the continued opportunity of working toward their solution."

County Schools In Road Tilts This Week

All three county schools will be on the road this week with Westfall seeing double action and Teays Valley and Logan Elm going to the hardwoods once.

Westfall will open play tonight at Adena in a makeup game and will travel to Piketon Friday night. In other Friday night contests, Teays Valley will be at Hamilton Twp. and Logan Elm will be on the road at Bloom Carroll.

The Vikings will be going after their 10th win in Metropolitan League play against the Rangers of Hamilton Twp. who are 2-6 in Metro action.

But the Rangers have proven that they can be a dangerous club to contend with as Grandview found out last week when cagers of Hamilton Twp. handed them their second loss in league play to strengthen the Vikings hold on first place in the title race.

However, the Vikings have proven they can do the job themselves but a little help from someone else never hurt anyone.

Teays Valley has to be considered one of the toughest teams in the Central District and the 11-0 record of the Vikings have moved them into sixth place in the Class AA state standings.

The Vikings also have momentum going for them after a big win over county rival Circleville Saturday night.

Coach Bob Hoover will go with his starting five of Craig Pontius and Jay Brinker at the guards, Jim Logsdon at center with Terry Collins and Jeff Anderson working at the forward posts.

One of the strong points of the Vikings this season is their bench strength with Terry Lambert, Lee Stiles, Chuck Glitt and George Spohn providing depth to the squad.

Coach Mike Eckle's Mustangs are 2-7 for the season but have been a rapidly improving club and are going to make trouble for the other teams before the season is over.

Several of the Mustangs' losses have been by a narrow margin and a few breaks their way would have put them in the win column.

They are a bunch of scrappy cagers who don't quit when the "chips are down" and once the ball starts falling for them, losses will certainly turn into victories.

Doug Williams, Joe Angles, Jay Clark, Brad Beatty, Dave Shannon and

Jim Picklesimer have been seeing the brunt of action for Westfall and will be counted on to get the job done against Adena and Piketon.

Bloom-Carroll has a small team but they compensate for it with their quickness. Their biggest kid is about 6-foot-2.

They play a run and shoot offense and a full court man to man defense. Their best guard is a boy named Charles Black, a 5-9 junior. Rick McQuade, 6-1, is the best rebounder on the team. They are very-very aggressive, on defense, they get the ball in the air quickly and crash the boards, according to scouting reports.

They have a small floor on a stage which will make it tough for us, according to coach Dave Little. "We will probably try to slow the game down since we are not as quick as they are." Joe Stump should be back by Friday.

He has been sidelined by an ankle injury. The starting lineup is undecided according to Little. It will include Scott Pontius, Mitch Martin, Terry Crumley and Stump but the fifth starter is still uncertain.

Dayton Flyers Top Loyola, 74-59

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Loyola of Chicago decided to use a zone defense against Dayton's strong offense Monday night, but it failed to contain the Flyers.

"We're not used to playing it, but we figured we'd give it a try," Loyola Coach George Ireland said after his team suffered a 74-59 beating.

"It didn't work because we didn't match them physically."

Mike Sylvester netted 13 of his game-high 23 points and Alan Elijah 10 of his 12 points in the first half as the Flyers charged to a 42-30 lead at intermission.

But the spunky Ramblers came back in the second half and closed the gap to seven points with four minutes left on the clock.

However, free throw shooting by Dayton kept Loyola at distance. Donald Smith and Joe Fisher combined for six, one-pointers in the next two minutes to put the Flyers up 68-55.

The Flyers dominated the boards 57-46, with Elijah grabbing 16 rebounds, Sylvester 11 and John Von Lehman 10, before he fouled out halfway through the second period.

The victory gave Dayton a 10-3 record, while Loyola's mark fell to 5-9.

In other college basketball action Monday night, Otterbein downed Ohio Conference foe Denison 84-70 as center Jim Reed hit 100 per cent of his shots from the field and the charity stripe.

Reed scored 18 points by swishing eight field goals and two free throws. But teammate Mike Hayes and Denison's Lee Bowman shared game scoring honors with 20 points apiece.

Otterbein evened its league record at 2-2, while Denison dropped its third game in four OC outings.

Presidents' Conference action saw John Carroll whipping Carnegie-Mellon 90-62 for a 3-2 league mark. Winless Carnegie Mellon dropped its fifth straight conference match.

Cleveland State defeated Eastern

Michigan 61-55 behind the 26-point performance of Wilbur Starks. It was the first time Cleveland State (3-8) has beaten Eastern Michigan (3-10) in nine encounters.

Elsewhere, Akron edged Buffalo 75-69 in a come-from-behind effort led by Nate Barnett and Earle Dixon with 18 points apiece, and Tennessee State notched a 74-52 victory over a cold-shooting Central State squad that managed to hit only 27 per cent of its shots from the field.

UCLA, Irish 1-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UCLA and Notre Dame, rolling on a collision course toward the next two weekends, continued to hold down the 1-2 spots in The Associated Press college basketball ratings today.

The mighty Uclans stretched their all-time record winning streak to 87 games — 12-0 this season — with victories over Washington State, California and Stanford last week. They received all 46 first-place votes and a perfect 920 points from the nationwide board of sports writers and broadcasters who participated in this week's poll.

Notre Dame, which hosts UCLA on Saturday and meets the Bruins in Los Angeles the following week, is 8-0 after walloping Xavier of Ohio 87-44 in its only action last week.

The Fighting Irish, seeking to match their football counterparts with a No. 1 ranking, received 816 points.

North Carolina State's 80-74 triumph over Maryland on Sunday brought about a switch in positions from last week's poll. This time, N.C. State is third with 700 points and Maryland fourth with 598.

North Carolina retained its No. 5 ranking while Marquette climbed from seventh to sixth by defeating San Diego State and DePaul.

Vanderbilt, which had been sixth, slipped to eighth by losing to Louisiana State. Providence climbed past the Commodores from 10th to seventh with victories over Villanova and Cal-Irvine.

Long Beach State shrugged off a harsh National Collegiate Athletic Association probation and turned back Pacific and San Jose State to hold onto ninth place while Alabama jumped from 12th to 10th by routing Tennessee and Mississippi State.

Previously unbeaten New Mexico dropped out of the Top Ten. The Lobos lost to Arizona and Arizona State and fell from eighth to 15th.

The Second Ten consists of South Carolina, Indiana, Southern California, Michigan, New Mexico, Louisville, Pittsburgh, Missouri, Wisconsin and Cincinnati.

Last week, it was Louisville, Alabama, Indiana and Wisconsin tied for 13th, South Carolina, Nevada-Las Vegas, Southern Cal, Michigan, Memphis State and Hawaii.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records through Sunday and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

Judge To Decide On Cedeno Charges

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (AP) — A judge is expected to rule in the next few days on whether to drop charges of involuntary manslaughter against outfielder Cesar Cedeno of the Houston Astros in connection with the gunshot death of a 19-year-old woman.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Franklin Diaz Alvarez asked the court Monday to drop the charges, saying there was not enough evidence against Cedeno.

Bill Walton May Miss Next Game

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The UCLA Bruins could be without star center Bill Walton when they return to the scene of their last defeat but if Coach John Wooden is alarmed he doesn't show it.

"I'm assuming we will not have him," Wooden said Monday, when Walton's bruised back muscle kept him from practicing. "If we do, it'll be a plus — a big plus."

Walton, the senior who already has been honored as college basketball's outstanding player the past two years, was hurt Jan. 7 against Washington State. He missed UCLA's 86th and 87th consecutive triumphs last weekend against California and Stanford.

The top-ranked Bruins leave Wednesday for Chicago and a game Thursday night against Iowa and then move on to South Bend Ind., to meet second-ranked Notre Dame Saturday on national television.

UCLA's last defeat was 89-82 at Notre Dame in January 1971.

"If Bill can practice Tuesday without any complications, he will go on the trip," Wooden said.

Trainer Ducky Drake, who gives the 6-foot-11 Walton twice-daily whirlpool massages, ultrasound and bending exercises, said Walton "is moving much better. He's walking normally but he can't move quickly."

Dr. Gerald Finerman, UCLA team physician, said, "It's a day-to-day proposition."

'Doc' Foley Succumbs; Sports Trainer

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Funeral Services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Thursday for Charles A. "Doc" Foley, a nationally-known baseball and football trainer.

Foley, who worked as a trainer for two major league baseball organizations and one professional football team, died Monday at St. Vincent Hospital here at the age of 63.

Teays Valley 6th In AA Poll

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — All-winning Sebring replaced once-beaten Mansfield St. Peter's today as the Class A pacesetter in The Associated Press Ohio high school basketball ratings.

Sebring, from Mahoning County, has whipped eight straight opponents and collected 216 points, just one point ahead of St. Peter's, 11-1.

Sebring was second a week ago to the Mansfield school in the small school poll of a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Meanwhile, Canton McKinley in Class AAA and Akron Manchester in Class AA, also carrying unbeaten records, retained their top spots in the weekly rankings.

McKinley, 11-0, had the most impressive lead. The Bulldogs were 31 points ahead of runnerup Boardman 262-231.

Manchester, winning all 11 of its tests so far, piled up 218 points to 201 for No. 2 Wellsville, 9-0. Columbus Mohawk suffered its first loss in 10 games last week and fell from second to third place.

There was only one new member to the top tens in the three classes. Mount Vernon, 9-1, climbed into the tenth spot in Class AAA, replacing Akron Kenmore, 11th this week.

Kettering Alter, Cincinnati LaSalle and Springfield North were third, fourth and fifth. Chillicothe jumped one spot to sixth, swapping places with Dayton Dunbar.

Warren Western Reserve and Cincinnati Elder, the defending Class AAA state tournament champion, kept the eighth and ninth spots in Class AAA.

In Class AA, Millersburg West Holmes remained fourth and then came Newark Licking Valley, Ashville Teays Valley, Louisville Aquinas, Canton Lehman, Waverly and Marion River Valley.

In Class A, Lorain Clearview was No. 3 again with Gnadenhutzen Indian Valley South and Marion Pleasant, both former state tournament titleholders, sharing fourth. Pittsburg Franklin-Monroe was sixth while Sidney Lehman and Greenwich South Central shared seventh, Cleveland Lutheran East was No. 9 and Peebles No. 10.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Here's how a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters rates Ohio high school basketball teams this week for The Associated Press (10 points for first to 1 point for tenth):

CLASS AAA
1. Canton McKinley, 11-0, 262 points.
2. Boardman, 11-0, 231.
3. Kettering Alter, 11-0, 153.
4. Cincinnati LaSalle, 9-0, 130.
5. Springfield North, 9-0, 104.

Brown did, but I don't think he did what any other coach wouldn't have done," said Davis.

Elsewhere in college basketball Monday night, eighth-ranked Vanderbilt overpowered Georgia 91-71; No. 10 Alabama smothered Mississippi 88-71 and No. 12 Indiana trimmed Northwestern 72-67.

Given an edge, Mississippi State took advantage of it behind Jerry Jenkins' 23 points. The Bulldogs really made hay in the second half, when the decimated Tigers became tired, and outscored their opponents 51-39.

Temple, LSU's high scorer with 23 points, fouled out with 53 seconds left in the game — leaving four mates to face Mississippi State's five.

Brown explained his action for the one-game suspension.

"These young men violated the curfew," he said. "I have talked to each of them and they have admitted their indiscretions. Nobody is mad at anybody and I am sure they have learned their lessons."

LSU plays powerful Alabama this Saturday and Brown says: "As things stand now, all will be back in uniform."

Jan van Breda Kolff and Jess Fosnes combined for 32 points and 24 rebounds, helping Vanderbilt beat Georgia in their Southeastern Conference game. Each player scored 16 points and Fosnes grabbed 13 rebounds and van Breda Kolff 11 as the Commodores won their 11th game in 12 starts.

Charles Cleveland scored 27 points, mostly on long jump shots, to lead Alabama over Mississippi. Down 20-11, the Crimson Tide came back behind Cleveland to grab a 36-29 lead at the half.

John Laskowski hit an 18-foot shot and a pair of free throws in the waning minutes to lead Indiana past tenacious Northwestern.

In other college action, Furman beat Manhattan 94-76; Dayton trimmed Chicago of Loyola 74-59; Kansas State clipped Oklahoma State 72-69; Oklahoma crushed Colorado 92-61; Eastern Kentucky beat Austin Peay 71-64; Penn State downed Princeton 62-50; American University nipped Temple 65-64; Tennessee turned back Kentucky 67-54 and Florida bounced Auburn 92-81.

County Schools In Road Tilts This Week

All three county schools will be on the road this week with Westfall seeing double action and Teays Valley and Logan Elm going to the hardwoods once.

Westfall will open play tonight at Adena in a makeup game and will travel to Piketon Friday night. In other Friday night contests, Teays Valley will be at Hamilton Twp. and Logan Elm will be on the road at Bloom Carroll.

The Vikings will be going after their 10th win in Metropolitan League play against the Rangers of Hamilton Twp. who are 2-6 in Metro action.

But the Rangers have proven that they can be a dangerous club to contend with as Grandview found out last week when cagers of Hamilton Twp. handed them their second loss in league play to strengthen the Vikings hold on first place in the title race.

However, the Vikings have proven they can do the job themselves but a little help from someone else never hurt anyone.

Teays Valley has to be considered one of the toughest teams in the Central District and the 11-0 record of the Vikings have moved them into sixth place in the Class AA state standings.

The Vikings also have momentum going for them after a big win over county rival Circleville Saturday night.

Coach Bob Hoover will go with his starting five of Craig Pontius and Jay Brinker at the guards, Jim Logsdon at center with Terry Collins and Jeff Anderson working at the forward posts.

One of the strong points of the Vikings this season is their bench strength with Terry Lambert, Lee Stiles, Chuck Glitt and George Spohn providing depth to the squad.

Coach Mike Eckle's Mustangs are 2-7 for the season but have been a rapidly improving club and are going to make trouble for the other teams before the season is over.

Several of the Mustangs' losses have been by a narrow margin and a few breaks their way would have put them in the win column.

They are a bunch of scrappy cagers who don't quit when the "chips are down" and once the ball starts falling for them, losses will certainly turn into victories.

Doug Williams, Joe Angles, Jay Clark, Brad Beatty, Dave Shannon and

Jim Picklesimer have been seeing the brunt of action for Westfall and will be counted on to get the job done against Adena and Piketon.

Bloom-Carroll has a small team but they compensate for it with their quickness. Their biggest kid is about 6-foot-2.

They play a run and shoot offense and a full court man to man defense. Their best guard is a boy named Charles Black, a 5-9 junior. Rick McQuade, 6-1, is the best rebounder on the team. They are very-very aggressive, on defense, they get the ball in the air quickly and crash the boards, according to scouting reports.

They have a small floor on a stage which will make it tough for us, according to coach Dave Little. "We will probably try to slow the game down since we are not as quick as they are." Joe Stump should be back by Friday.

He has been sidelined by an ankle injury. The starting lineup is undecided according to Little. It will include Scott Pontius, Mitch Martin, Terry Crumley and Stump but the fifth starter is still uncertain.

Dayton Flyers Top Loyola, 74-59

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Loyola of Chicago decided to use a zone defense against Dayton's strong offense Monday night, but it failed to contain the Flyers.

"We're not used to playing it, but we figured we'd give it a try," Loyola Coach George Ireland said after his team suffered a 74-59 beating.

"It didn't work because we didn't match them physically."

Mike Sylvester netted 13 of his game-high 23 points and Alan Elijah 10 of his 12 points in the first half as the Flyers charged to a 42-30 lead at intermission.

But the spunky Ramblers came back in the second half and closed the gap to seven points with four minutes left on the clock.

However, free throw shooting by Dayton kept Loyola at distance. Donald Smith and Joe Fisher combined for six, one-pointers in the next two minutes to put the Flyers up 68-55.

The Flyers dominated the boards 57-46, with Elijah grabbing 16 rebounds, Sylvester 11 and John Von Lehman 10, before he fouled out halfway through the second period.

The victory gave Dayton a 10-3 record, while Loyola's mark fell to 5-9.

In other college basketball action Monday night, Otterbein downed Ohio Conference foe Denison 84-70 as center Jim Reed hit 100 per cent of his shots from the field and the charity stripe.

Reed scored 18 points by swishing eight field goals and two free throws. But teammate Mike Hayes and Denison's Lee Bowman shared game scoring honors with 20 points apiece.

Otterbein evened its league record at 2-2, while Denison dropped its third game in four OC outings.

Presidents' Conference action saw John Carroll whipping Carnegie-Mellon 90-62 for a 3-2 league mark. Winless Carnegie Mellon dropped its fifth straight conference match.

Cleveland State defeated Eastern

Michigan 61-55 behind the 26-point performance of Wilbur Starks. It was the first time Cleveland State (3-8) has beaten Eastern Michigan (3-10) in nine encounters.

Elsewhere, Akron edged Buffalo 75-69 in a come-from-behind effort led by Nate Barnett and Earlie Dixon with 18 points apiece, and Tennessee State notched a 74-52 victory over a cold-shooting Central State squad that managed to hit only 27 per cent of its shots from the field.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — All-winning Sebring replaced once-beaten Mansfield St. Peter's today as the Class A pacesetter in The Associated Press Ohio high school basketball ratings.

Sebring, from Mahoning County, has whipped eight straight opponents and collected 216 points, just one point ahead of St. Peter's, 11-1.

Sebring was second a week ago to the Mansfield school in the small school poll of a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Meanwhile, Canton McKinley in Class AAA and Akron Manchester in Class AA, also carrying unbeaten records, retained their top spots in the weekly rankings.

McKinley, 11-0, had the most impressive lead. The Bulldogs were 31 points ahead of runnerup Boardman 262-231.

Manchester, winning all 11 of its tests so far, piled up 218 points to 201 for No. 2 Wellsville, 9-0. Columbus Mohawk suffered its first loss in 10 games last week and fell from second to third place.

There was only one new member to the top tens in the three classes. Mount Vernon, 9-1, climbed into the tenth spot in Class AAA, replacing Akron Kenmore, 11th this week.

Kettering Alter, Cincinnati LaSalle and Springfield North were third, fourth and fifth. Chillicothe jumped one spot to sixth, swapping places with Dayton Dunbar.

Warren Western Reserve and Cincinnati Elder, the defending Class AAA state tournament champion, kept the eighth and ninth spots in Class AAA.

In Class AA, Millersburg West Holmes remained fourth and then came Newark Licking Valley, Ashville Teays Valley, Louisville Aquinas, Canton Lehman, Waverly and Marion River Valley.

In Class A, Lorain Clearview was No. 3 again with Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South and Marion Pleasant, both former state tournament

titleholders, sharing fourth. Pittsburg Franklin-Monroe was sixth while Sidney Lehman and Greenwich South Central shared seventh, Cleveland Lutheran East was No. 9 and Peebles No. 10.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Here's how a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters rates Ohio high school basketball teams this week for The Associated Press (10 points for first to 1 point for tenth):

Talk about handicaps, Louisiana State's basketball team had a lulu Monday night — no players. Well, not enough, anyway.

Because of suspensions, only five players dressed for the game with Mississippi State, and only four were left after Colis Temple fouled out at the end.

The result, quite naturally: Mississippi State 89, LSU 75.

Coach Dale Brown was responsible for shaving his squad to the bone. He put seven of the 12 varsity players on suspension for breaking curfew the night before.

"I was scared to death going up against LSU that way," said Mississippi State Coach Kermit Davis. "As far as I was concerned, it was the worst thing that could have happened."

"I knew those five players were capable, and I didn't know whether our players would rise to the occasion, or think they could take it easy."

Brown's action was understandable and admirable, Davis added.

"I have a lot of respect for what

Brown did, but I don't think he did what any other coach wouldn't have done," said Davis.

Elsewhere in college basketball Monday night, eighth-ranked Vanderbilt overpowered Georgia 91-71; No. 10 Alabama smothered Mississippi 88-71 and No. 12 Indiana trimmed Northwestern 72-67.

Given an edge, Mississippi State took advantage of it behind Jerry Jenkins' 23 points. The Bulldogs really made hay in the second half, when the decimated Tigers became tired, and outscored their opponents 51-39.

Temple, LSU's high scorer with 23 points, fouled out with 53 seconds left in the game — leaving four mates to face Mississippi State's five.

Brown explained his action for the one-game suspension.

"These young men violated the curfew," he said. "I have talked to each of them and they have admitted their indiscretions. Nobody is mad at anybody and I am sure they have learned their lessons."

LSU plays powerful Alabama this Saturday and Brown says: "As things stand now, all will be back in uniform."

Jan van Breda Kolff and Jess Fosnes combined for 32 points and 24 rebounds, helping Vanderbilt beat Georgia in their Southeastern Conference game. Each player scored 16 points and Fosnes grabbed 13 rebounds and van Breda Kolff 11 as the Commodores won their 11th game in 12 starts.

Charles Cleveland scored 27 points, mostly on long jump shots, to lead Alabama over Mississippi. Down 20-11, the Crimson Tide came back behind Cleveland to grab a 36-29 lead at the half.

John Laskowski hit an 18-foot shot and a pair of free throws in the waning minutes to lead Indiana past tenacious Northwestern.

In other college action, Furman beat Manhattan 94-76; Dayton trimmed Chicago of Loyola 74-59; Kansas State clipped Oklahoma State 72-69; Oklahoma crushed Colorado 92-61; Eastern Kentucky beat Austin Peay 71-64; Penn State downed Princeton 62-50; American University nipped Temple 65-64; Tennessee turned back Kentucky 67-54 and Florida bounced Auburn 92-81.

UCLA, Irish 1-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UCLA and Notre Dame, rolling on a collision course toward the next two weekends, continued to hold down the 1-2 spots in The Associated Press college basketball ratings today.

The mighty Uclans stretched their all-time record winning streak to 87 games — 12-0 this season — with victories over Washington State, California and Stanford last week. They received all 46 first-place votes and a perfect 920 points from the nationwide board of sports writers and broadcasters who participated in this week's poll.

Notre Dame, which hosts UCLA on Saturday and meets the Bruins in Los Angeles the following week, is 8-0 after wallopping Xavier of Ohio 87-44 in its only action last week.

The Fighting Irish, seeking to match their football counterparts with a No. 1 ranking, received 816 points.

North Carolina State's 80-74 triumph over Maryland on Sunday brought about a switch in positions from last week's poll. This time, N.C. State is third with 700 points and Maryland fourth with 598.

North Carolina retained its No. 5 ranking while Marquette climbed from seventh to sixth by defeating San Diego State and DePaul.

Vanderbilt, which had been sixth, slipped to eighth by losing to Louisiana State. Providence climbed past the Commodores from 10th to seventh with victories over Villanova and Cal-Irvine.

Long Beach State shrugged off a harsh National Collegiate Athletic Association probation and turned back Pacific and San Jose State to hold onto ninth place while Alabama jumped from 12th to 10th by routing Tennessee and Mississippi State.

Previously unbeaten New Mexico dropped out of the Top Ten. The Lobos lost to Arizona and Arizona State and fell from eighth to 15th.

The Second Ten consists of South Carolina, Indiana, Southern California, Michigan, New Mexico, Louisville, Pittsburgh, Missouri, Wisconsin and Cincinnati.

Last week, it was Louisville, Alabama, Indiana and Wisconsin tied for 13th, South Carolina, Nevada-Las Vegas, Southern Cal, Michigan, Memphis State and Hawaii.

Judge To Decide On Cedeno Charges

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (AP) — A judge is expected to rule in the next few days on whether to drop charges of involuntary manslaughter against outfielder Cesar Cedeno of the Houston Astros in connection with the gunshot death of a 19-year-old woman.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Franklin Diaz Alvarez asked the court Monday to drop the charges, saying there was not enough evidence against Cedeno.

Bill Walton May Miss Next Game

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The UCLA Bruins could be without star center Bill Walton when they return to the scene of their last defeat but if Coach John Wooden is alarmed he doesn't show it.

"I'm assuming we will not have him," Wooden said Monday, when Walton's bruised back muscle kept him from practicing. "If we do, it'll be a plus — a big plus."

Walton, the senior who already has been honored as college basketball's outstanding player the past two years, was hurt Jan. 7 against Washington State. He missed UCLA's 86th and 87th consecutive triumphs last weekend against California and Stanford.

The top-ranked Bruins leave Wednesday for Chicago and a game Thursday night against Iowa and then move on to South Bend Ind., to meet second-ranked Notre Dame Saturday on national television.

UCLA's last defeat was 89-82 at Notre Dame in January 1971.

"If Bill can practice Tuesday without any complications, he will go on the trip," Wooden said.

Trainer Ducky Drake, who gives the 6-foot-11 Walton twice-daily whirlpool massages, ultrasound and bending exercises, said Walton "is moving much better. He's walking normally but he can't move quickly."

Dr. Gerald Finnerman, UCLA team physician, said, "It's a day-to-day proposition."

'Doc' Foley Succumbs; Sports Trainer

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Funeral Services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Thursday for Charles A. "Doc" Foley, a nationally known baseball and football trainer.

Foley, who worked as a trainer for two major league baseball organizations and one professional football team, died Monday at St. Vincent Hospital here at the age of 63.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC Television network tonight is emitting a sort of "Son of American Graffiti" called "Happy Days." It is a half-hour comedy series. It is set in the 1950s. It is awful.

Naturally, I like it. I grew up in the 1950s and had an awful time. The music was awful, the drive-in fistfights were awful, the warm beer at the Big Game was awful. Even my dog was awful. Only my '51 Ford with the twin Glass-Pak mufflers made life bearable.

The engine was stock and so are the characters in this series, which essentially is about a nice kid in high school trying to grow up while Bill Haley plays "Rock Around the Clock" at all hours.

But time-warped dialogue and all, "Happy Days" does a pretty fair job of recapturing the atmosphere of the era, starting off with the time-honored automotive Chinese fire drill as the credits roll.

Its debut effort tonight is about a budding boy-girl relationship and is called "All the Way." If you think I'm going to fool around with that line you're crazy.

But it involves a successful attempt by Patsy, played by Anson Williams, to get our hero, played by Ron Howard, a date with Mary Lou Milligan, a busty coed outlined by Kathy O'Dare.

She has a "reputation," having even once dated a sailor. She also is known to kiss in a certain way that fires men's souls.

The match-making is preceded by soda-shop Santa Fe, N.M.

discussions of someone's "hickey," a small neck welt raised by labial assault. Then comes "Spish Splash" and a pep talk on the fine art of seduction.

But of course, when the big night comes, it comes to naught. And awkwardly, for this is a story about Growing Up.

I predict now that "Happy Days" will be the season's hit, only because millions of Americans are old now, at least 30. It'll be obligatory for all of them to hoot or cheer the show's historical accuracy.

I have one suggestion for the producers, though. Stop those dancing scenes at the drive-in. Nobody dances at a drive-in. You only go there to look cool, glower at some dude and, if he glowers back, you, stomp all over his blue suede shoes.

Too Psychedelic For Irish Judge

DUBLIN (AP) — "Discos are a new development designed by the devil for crazy youngsters to make them even more crazy," said Judge Carr, ar Naas Court, County Kildare.

He said the psychedelic lights which rotated at high speed could drive people out of their minds.

The judge was hearing an objection to the granting of a dance license to an hotel.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Mars, in benefic aspect, urges continued interest in projects already started. Solid ventures can be advanced substantially. Sidestep distracting time-wasters.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Avoid confusion through proper preplanning. Weigh well the pros and cons when you must render a decision. Emphasize your humor and common sense.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Jack up sagging productivity, revise the format of programs which seem to get nowhere. A change of pace direction, momentum may be the answer. Give this adequate thought.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): A personal problem? Take it in stride. Just don't neglect essentials in the meantime. In time off, really relax.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Keep eyes focused on primary objectives. Coordinate efforts to obtain maximum results. Give prompt attention to urgent matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Why settle for less than the best when it is within your ability to accomplish so much? (This may be a tendency now.) Stick to procedures which have worked before, however.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Supplement present program with new vital additions. Progress indicated if methods are updated to meet current demands. Seek wise counsel from experts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): In a wide variety of desires, concentrate on the one which offers the greatest probability of worthwhile success. Do not be vexed by snide remarks, gossips.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Think things out carefully before taking action, and you will save innumerable steps. Study, read, discuss, become familiar with all phases of your endeavor to insure best results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): An analytical look at your position may indicate some new avenues to pursue. Keep an easy yet alert eye on future moves. Taper off in late hours to relax.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Uranus not too auspicious. This means more concentrated effort, perhaps an adjustment of your schedule, the better to suit changing requirements.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Your fine imagination, used constructively, will win out now. Never mind detractors. YOU are one of the UP-graders. Compete: Help form new plans.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately an intellectual, ambitious and unusually versatile. You can be master of many things, but must first learn to master yourself. You have the ability to lead or follow, once you recognize and develop your talents and learn to control faults — mainly tendencies toward arrogance and sarcasm. You could excel in literature or in any area of the entertainment field; would also make an excellent business executive, lawyer, scientist or statesman. Birthdate of: Richard Savage, poet dramatist.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC Television network tonight is emitting a sort of "Son of American Graffiti" called "Happy Days." It is set in the 1950s. It is awful. Naturally, I like it. I grew up in the 1950s and had an awful time. The music was awful, the drive-in fistfights were awful, the warm beer at the Big Game was awful. Even my dog was awful. Only my '51 Ford with the twin Glass-Pak mufflers made life bearable.

The engine was stock and so are the characters in this series, which essentially is about a nice kid in high school trying to grow up while Bill Haley plays "Rock Around the Clock" at all hours.

But time-warp dialogue and all, "Happy Days" does a pretty fair job of recapturing the atmosphere of the era, starting off with the time-honored automotive Chinese fire drill as the credits roll.

Its debut effort tonight is about a budding boy-girl relationship and is called "All the Way." If you think I'm going to fool around with that line you're crazy.

But it involves a successful attempt by Patsy, played by Anson Williams, to get our hero, played by Ron Howard, a date with Mary Lou Milligan, a busty coed outlined by Kathy O'Dare.

She has a "reputation," having even once dated a sailor. She also is known to kiss in a certain way that fires men's souls.

The match-making is preceded by soda-shop discussions of someone's "hickey," a small neck welt raised by labial assault. Then comes "Spish Splash" and a pep talk on the fine art of seduction.

But of course, when the big night comes, it comes to naught. And awkwardly, for this is a story about Growing Up.

I predict now that "Happy Days" will be the season's hit, only because millions of Americans are old now, at least 30. It'll be obligatory for all of them to hoot or cheer the show's historical accuracy.

I have one suggestion for the producers, though. Stop those dancing scenes at the drive-in. Nobody dances at a drive-in. You only go there to look cool, glower at some dude and, if he glowers back, you, stomp all over his blue suede shoes.

Too Psychedelic For Irish Judge

DUBLIN (AP) — "Discos are a new development designed by the devil for crazy youngsters to make them even more crazy," said Judge Carr, at Naas Court, County Kildare.

He said the psychedelic lights which rotated at high speed could drive people out of their minds.

The judge was hearing an objection to the granting of a dance license to an hotel.

The earliest references to rodeo date back to 1847 in Santa Fe, N.M.

Roundtown Players' Production 'The Mousetrap' Opens Wednesday

Janice Perdion will star as Mollie Ralston in the Roundtown Players' production of "The Mousetrap" which opens Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at the Memorial Hall theater. Leading man Steve Stevenson portrays Mollie's husband, Giles.

Although Janice is a club member of several years' standing, and has been active in almost every other phase of production, her role as Mollie marks her first real appearance on stage. She was seen for a few brief moments in "Gypsy" as Gypsy's maid, Renee, but other than that, is a newcomer to the stage.

JANICE PERDION

Janice, who was recognized by Roundtown Players for her outstanding service to the club when she became the first recipient of the Ortha Stambaugh award, has served on costume, prop, house, publicity, ticket, make-up, set patron, and Children's Theater committees. Employed in Columbus by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, Janice resides with her parents and grandmother at Route 5.

Veteran actor Steve Stevenson has appeared in at least nine Roundtown Player productions and has won audience appreciation awards for three of these: as Billis in "South Pacific," as Paul Bratter in "Barefoot In The Park," and as John Proctor in "The Crucible."

Steve has also appeared in three Chillicothe Civic Theater productions and at Ohio State University where he graduated with a degree in sociology. An agent with Massachusetts Mutual Insurance Company, Steve resides at 144 Montclair Ave.

Tickets for the Jan. 16-19 performances can be purchased at Alkire's TV or at the door.

Ralph Hovermale and Nancy Marshall will both be making second appearances with Roundtown Players in the production of "The Mousetrap."

Ralph's first appearance was as Captain Brackett in "South Pacific." Since that time he has worked backstage on house and set committees for "Barefoot in the Park," "My Fair Lady," and "Gypsy."

A staff scientist at DuPont, Ralph earned his B.S., M.S., and Ph. D. degrees in physical chemistry from the University of Kentucky. He has also done post graduate work at the University of Freiburg in Germany.

Ralph is actively involved with his son and daughter in both the YMCA Indian Guide and Indian Princess programs, and is a member of the First Baptist Church.

In addition to Circleville, Lexington, and Freiburg, Germany, Ralph, his wife and three children have also resided in Clinton, Iowa; Orange, Texas; and Buffalo, N.Y.

Although this is Nancy's second appearance with Roundtown Players, it is her first speaking role. In "Gypsy" she appeared as a show girl in Gypsy's strip routine. She appears in "The Mousetrap" as Miss Casewell.

Nancy is a graduate of Circleville High School where she worked on make-up and set crews for the 1970 production of "Dark of the Moon".

An executive secretary for Dumond and Sifford Associates of Columbus, Nancy resides at Elsea Trailer Court, and enjoys reading and water skiing.

Tragedy Fails To Stop Minister

CAMP VERDE, Ariz. (AP) — With aluminum hooks replacing the hands he once clasped in prayer, a minister has returned to Arizona's mountains to finish building a community for retarded adults.

The Rev. Ralph Showers, 37, was critically burned last September when he touched a 7,200-volt power line while hauling a small, donated barn to his project here.

The electrical load burned an 8-inch triangle into the American Baptist minister's back and exited through his hands, physicians said.

The Rev. Mr. Showers said that at that moment he saw God as a shadowy face through some dark window. He said he talked with Him.

"I wasn't angry with Him and I argued with Him. I laid it on Him and took my chances. I told him I really believed God had led me to do this work and that it wasn't fair to take my life, my family, my project and throw them down the tubes."

"He heard. He said, 'Okay, Ralph.' Then the electricity stopped."

The Rev. Mr. Showers was saved, but not his hands. They were amputated six inches below both elbows. So with metal hooks instead of hands, he returned to the 10 acres where he is creating a country home for retarded persons.

The minister hauls lumber with the hooks, helps feed horses, holds nails and jokes that he can't mash his thumb with a hammer.

"It's a hard way to look at it, but losing my hands has been very beneficial to me personally," he said. "My wife is closer, my sons are closer now because I need them."

His community, Rainbow Acres, will be ready for the first of its two dozen retarded occupants by March 1, he says.

The Rev. Mr. Showers, a psychology graduate from Arizona State University and the California Baptist Seminary, left his ministry job last June. Accompanied by the Rev. Larry Goehner, the two brought their families to Arizona to build the community.

The Rev. Mr. Showers hopes the two dozen occupants can be taught by senior citizens sidelined by society and retirement.

He said the retarded residents will be taught a country skill, maybe raising vegetables. Each will be allowed to develop his trade until he can become independent from family financing and government grants.

But there will be no graduates from Rainbow Acres, he said. Each resident will become a lifetime citizen.
